MANSFIELD'S STORY OF 'TOODLES'

HOGAN FAMILY WOE OVER NAME TOLD IN COURT

Miss Mary Louise Hogan, who seeks to change her name to Louise Malles Homan, was the principal witness today in the Hogan family hearing in Judge George's session of the Probate Court. The audience taxed the capacity of the courtroom.

Miss Hogan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Joseph Hogan of Westland avenue, and her brother, Herbert Warren Hogan, all of whom want the name Homan, have already testified.

The first witness today was Fred Lamson, vice-president of the Old Colony Trust Company. Asked by Attorney Shanley if the company "made any distinction" in hiring employes, he replied:

"We make no distinction at all in religion."

MISS HOGAN TAKES THE STAND.

Miss Hogan was then called. She said she was twenty-three years old.

She was next asked: "Where were you born?" she answered "Boston."

Q.—Why do you desire to change your name? A.—For social and business reasons.

Q.—State specifically some reasons. A.—I have been refused several positions on account of the name. I have been refused admittance to social clubs on account of the name. I once applied for a position as stenographer in a large business house here in Boston. They were about to employ me when they asked me my name. Immediately they made some silly excuse about hiring their old stenographer back again and I was told that I was not wanted. At another place that I applied to they were about to hire me when they asked for my card. Two men looked Demand Hall Pardon Facts

Representative Robert M. Washburn of Worcester, speaking before the Legislative committee on rules today on his bill for the investigation of the recent pardoning of John A. Hall, the Southbridge bank embezzler, urged a thorough inquiry, saying:

"The point I make is that something happened and the people of this State are entitled to know what it was."

Arrest 5 for Row at Garment Shop

Five men were arrested today during a fight in front of a garment-manufacturing place in Harrison avenue extension. According to the police, the clash resulted from a strike in the plant. Those men were accused of participating in the affray: John Granotelli, thirty-eight; Joseph Somnarco, eighteen; Dominic Cabussio, twenty-three; Mendel Uretsi, forty-eight; Igmus Coopus, twenty-three.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Mrs. Julia Fitzsimmons has been granted a divorce from Robert Fitzsimmons, formerly world's champion heavyweight pugilist. She charged cruelty.

JOHN H. MURPHY, Jr., fourteen-year-old Dorchester boy, accused of killing his brother with a knife.

BOY IS HELD FOR KILLING BROTHER

John H. Murphy, Jr., who is not yet fourteen years old, but who is charged with having killed his brother, William Paul Murphy, seventeen, with a knife, was before Judge Joseph R. Churchill in the Dorchester Juvenile Court today and held in $2,000 for a hearing on Tuesday, January 26.

Bonds were furnished by Representative Lewis R. Sullivan and Ex-Representative John A. Anderson.

The only court formality was the reading of the complaint, made by Patrolman Freeland Webber. It charges the boy with such assault and battery upon his brother as to kill him.

The tragedy happened in the Murphy home at No. 6 Grant street, Upham's Corner, last evening, and is said to have been due to a quarrel over spilled gravy.

Davie, Pardoned Broker, Divorced

Judge Chase in the Suffolk County divorce court today gave Robert E. Davie, the boy broker who was pardoned from prison while serving a five-year sentence, a divorce from his wife.

Davie charges that his wife, who is the daughter of James E. Cotter, the lawyer, deserted him on August 11, 1908, while they were living at Nantasket.

His wife, who entered the City Hospital to learn professional nursing after Davie's arrest, did not contest the divorce.

TRY HARD TO PUT HARVARD ON 'WATER WAGON'

If Harvard's educated worm
Were still alive in learned squirm,
He might assume position firm
On "Beer."
But "Educated Pete" has flown
On wormy wings to joys unknown
And left the college all alone
With "Beer."
(Brewery Ballads)

Life is one thing after another at Harvard, and now it's the beer issue. Some collegians call for Harvard to get aboard the water wagon.

The posters for the sophomore banquet advertised "Beer, Movies, Cigarettes," and the poster-promise was made good at the gathering.

Now some undergraduates are writing to the Crimson about it, and the Crimson confesses that beer at class banquets, and smokers "is an open question."

Harold M. Thurston of Muskegon, Mich., one of the "undergrads," attacks the banquet beer in the following letter to the Crimson:

CALLS IT TYRANNY.

"To me that has always seemed a tyrannical custom which has imposed the use of beer at all class banquets or smokers. My interpretation of the purpose of a class gathering may be unfounded, but I hold it to be true that such functions should be representative of the best opinion in the class. As long as some men consider beer to be an essential element in a class banquet, other men, being conscious of certain individual and social consequences from the use of alcoholic liquors, cannot give this expression of class activity their hearty or loyal support. The banquet or smoker then falls short of its purpose, for it ceases to be a class affair."

LIVELY DISCUSSION

Another objector says that beer and cigarettes are objectionable and that either the student council or the board of trustees should do something in the matter.

The Crimson gave two editorials today to the beer trouble. The first one reads:

"Some of the communications which the Crimson has received—and has not printed—condemning the serving of beer at smokers would make snappy reading for many if copied by the outside press. Those willing to abuse Harvard on any pretext would find them truly engrossing. The Crimson does not wish to restrict freedom of discussion in its columns, but those who desire to make their views public should remember that harm is quite frequently done through utterances which should be confined to Cambridge."

Right under that editorial the Crimson had a second one, discussing the merits of the issue, thus:

"THE BEER QUESTION."

"Let us confess our sanction of drunkenness, indecency, lying, disrespectfulness and thieving," writes one correspondent, apropos of the "Beer, Movies, Cigarettes" advertised on the posters of the sophomore banquet. On the other side, another tells us that "beer . . . changes the yelping minstrel into Caruso," and claims that it is "the only things that makes a meeting go." Both of these writers are intolerant, and each runs to ridiculous extremes.

Kaiser Again Defies Doctor

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 21.—A private dispatch from Brussels today said that the Kaiser's physician had ordered him to return to Berlin so that another operation on his throat could be performed. The Kaiser, it is said, refused to accede to the demands of his physician, and is said to have declared that he would not return to the German capital until his troops had scored an overwhelming victory.

LALLY, SALEM HEALTH HEAD, KILLS HIMSELF

Thomas J. Lally, of No. 147 Essex street, Salem, director of public health of that city, committed suicide in a room at the Hotel Hamilton, Lynn, at noon today.

Lally came to the hotel at 11 a. m. and registered as "Thomas J. Wilton, Salem, Mass." Half an hour later Albert Jackson, a bellboy, heard a shot and hurried to the room. He found Lally on the floor, dead, a 38-calibre revolver by his side.

Lally had fired one shot into his head behind the right ear and died instantly.

In the dead man's pocket were found a number of receipts of money paid to the poor department of Salem and a receipt for an insurance premium paid on a policy made out in favor of his sister, Miss Flora Lally.

Lally was formerly an alderman and a councilman in Salem. He is survived by a wife and one child.

McHugh, City Hall Policeman, Dead

Edward McHugh, senior member of the Boston police department in point of age, died today at his home, No. 11 Charlotte street, Dorchester. He was the guard for the Mayor's private office at City Hall for the last few years and, in that capacity, elected Ex-Representative William Doyle of East Boston from the office recently.

McHugh was born in Ireland on April 7, 1835, and was appointed to the Boston police department on May 5, 1873. He was attached to Court square station.

Harvard Debates Wilson's Policies

Harvard students will tonight discuss the present national administration. The question, "The present administration does not merit our confidence," will be threshed out at an open forum in the living room of the Harvard Union. Former Lieutenant-Governor Louis A. Frothingham will review the arguments made by speakers for and against the question.

MISS RYAN, PLAINTIFF IN $50,000 LOVE SUIT

BRITISH LIE IN WAIT FOR DACIA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Word was received today from Havana that two British cruisers off the Cuban coast have been ordered to seize the American steamship Dacia if she sails from Galveston with a cargo of cotton.

The United States government has decided to ignore the protest of the British government regarding the status of the steamer Dacia and will issue an insurance policy on the cargo of the vessel. War risk insurance on the hull of the Dacia will be refused by the government.

T. W. Lamar, representing E. N. Breteuq, the New York banker, the owner of the Dacia, is in Washington in conference with Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, Assistant Secretary Peters and the members of the war risk insurance bureau. Mr. Lamar said it was the intention to have the Dacia sail from Galveston, Tex., for Rotterdam within the next two days. He asked for insurance of the cargo and this was agreed upon.

The Dacia, which was purchased from the Hamburg-American line, has on board a cargo of cotton valued at about $700,000. In assuming the risk of insurance the government will charge 3 per cent. premium on the cargo or $21,000.

Treasury officials in immediate charge of the matter stated that France has brought greater pressure than England to bear upon the United States to prevent the dispatch from American shores of the Dacia.

MANSFIELD ON STAND DENIES MARRIAGE TALK

Harry K. Mansfield, proprietor of the Farncroft Inn, testified in his own defence today in the trial of the $50,000 breach of promise suit Miss Elizabeth M. Ryan ("Toodles") brought against him. He described their relations through the Summer of 1910, told of her making trips to New York and of a trip they made together to Bermuda.

He said Miss Ryan on Christmas day, 1910, had wept and said she must have a present, so he gave her $500. He said he raised her weekly allowance from $50 to $75 to stop her sending C. O. D. bundles to him. One bundle contained an opera cape worth $35, he said.

TELLS OF PHONE TALK.

Mansfield told of Miss Ryan's saying over the 'phone to a "gentleman friend" in New York: "Oh, you devil, devil, devil—keep out for the sake of my kimono." Mansfield declared the kimono was of "pure Japanese silk, a steel color and hand worked."

At Bermuda he paid $12 a day for a room and both for Miss Ryan, and added that they were "too seasick to quarrel on the trip to the islands. On their return, however, they had a big quarrel in the cabin, he said. In 1911 he wrote her a letter, beginning with "Dear Bess" or "Dear dear Bess," and winding up with "Love, Harry," or "something like that." In reply to questions he made denials that he discussed marriage with her or proposed to her.

TEN WOMEN PRESENT.

The courtroom was again filled and there was the usual throng in the corridors. Among the spectators were ten women, some of whom were witnesses.

Mansfield was questioned by his counsel, Michael Sullivan:

Q.—At adjournment yesterday I asked you about giving money to Miss Ryan, and you told of giving

VERY LATEST NEWS

RUSSIANS ADMIT GERMANS HAVE FORCED THEIR WAY ACROSS VISTULA

PETROGRAD, Jan. 21.—Reports received here this afternoon indicate that after three days of hard fighting German forces have succeeded in crossing the Vistula River from the south and are threatening to cut off Russian troops operating northwest of Novo Georgievsk.

NEXT AIR RAID MENACES LONDON

LONDON, Jan. 21.—A Berlin dispatch quotes an official statement as saying:

"The Zeppelin raid on English towns has caused the wildest delight and satisfaction throughout Germany. The raid had been planned for months past and only awaited an opportunity for its accomplishment. THIS IS ONLY THE BEGINNING."

One of the occupants of the Zeppelin which passed 200 feet over King George's palace at Sandringham, in the first airship invasion of Great Britain, it became known today, shouted in English and then dropped this message, in German:

YOU MUST NOT BE FRIGHTENED, REMEMBER US ALL TO YOUR KING AND QUEEN. OUR PRINCE WON'T HURT YOU. WE ARE AFTER THE AIRSHEDS AT YARMOUTH.

The Zeppelin then rose very rapidly and disappeared. There is a strong suspicion here that one of the Kaiser's sons was aboard. It was learned today that Prince John Charles, ten years old—the youngest son of King George—was in the palace when the Zeppelin passed over Sandringham and was the first to spy the airship.

The Express learns, on high authority, that three Zeppelins were engaged in the aerial raid. They flew until within thirty miles of England, when they separated. One went to Yarmouth and then made for home. The second proceeded to Cromer and Sheringham, while the third headed for Sandringham, joining the second later near Runstanton.

Count Zeppelin's first aerial invasion of England was guided by information from a plot of German spies, it is believed in official circles today. In high quarters it is said that in no other way could the Germans have learned that the British royal family was at Sandringham. It was only chance that let King George, Queen Mary and the young Princess Mary to leave during the day of the raid.

The youngest of the royal children—Prince John Charles—however, was at Sandringham with a dozen members of the royal household. One Zeppelin passed right over York cottage, which is the Sandringham home of their majesties, and came down to within 300 yards of the ground.

PRINCE DISCOVERED RAID.

The approach of the Zeppelin was first noticed by Prince John, who was sleeping, as is his custom, with the windows of his nursery open and the blinds up. He was awakened by a bright, flashing in the sky, and called his nurse's attention to it.

In a few minutes it was plain that his light came from an airship. The nurse ran and called Mr. Gardiner, the home steward, and all members of the royal household assembled downstairs.

Captain Edwards, equerry in residence, ordered Prince John and the servants to the cellars, while he and some of the male members of the household went to the front entrance and surveyed the airship.

The presence of a Zeppelin over the royal residence at Sandringham only a few hours after the departure of the King and Queen suggests only one thing: That England is still infested with a huge corps of German spies, who are ready to fill all obstacles placed in their way. In communicating important news to their home government. Renewed efforts to raid the activities of these secret agents will be an added result of the raid.

London expects, more certainly than ever, that a Zeppelin raid against the capital itself will be the logical result of this first aerial skirmish. But the uncertainty, which in the past has been tinged with a dread amounting almost to horror, has been added a measure of complacency.

GERMANS ADMIT LOSS OF GROUND TO FRENCH; AUSTRIANS RETREAT

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The capture of La Boisselle by the French after furious hand to hand fighting and the retreat of the Austrians who were sent to Bukowina to stop the Russian invasion of Hungary are the important features of the war news.

Admission of the losses of German trenches at Notre Dame de Loretta is contained in the Berlin official statement today. Paris announced the capture of these trenches in last night's official statement.

A Copenhagen dispatch today quotes a Berlin message to the effect that the Russians are bringing up heavy reinforcements along the Vistula River to Poland and that the Germans are fortifying all the positions they hold in Poland and in the strongest possible manner.

The fact that the Germans are fortifying Poland indicates that they are going to assume the defensive.

Paris today says that the fighting at La Boisselle continues, the French positions being shelled by the German batteries.

Paris says further that there is severe fighting in the region of Albert, where the Germans were able to press forward, and of the entanglements protecting the French trenches at Thievral.

These attacks are all part of the offensive movement launched by the Kaiser's forces east of Arnsin. The Germans at that point are trying to pierce the French lines with the idea of menacing the lines of communication supplying the French and British armies in northern Prapee and West Flanders.

After a lull in the infantry operations, caused by floods, the Germans and allies are again at arips in West Flanders, particularly upon the seacoast, where British warships are again in action shelling the positions of the German artillery.

GERMANS ADMIT REVERSE.

Berlin official announcement after admitting slight recesses at Notre Dame de Loretta says:

"Northeast of Arras repeated French attacks on both sides of the Arras-Lille highway were repulsed.

"We took and retained two French trenches southwest of Souchez and Neuville notwithstanding counter attacks.

(Note—Berry-au-Bac is on the Aisne River at the point where the German line swings from the north-ern to the southern bank.)

"French attacks on our position south of St. Mihiel were repulsed and we succeeded in recapturing a portion occupied by us northwest of Pont-a-Mousson on Monday. We took four cannon and several prisoners. Fighting continues for the remainder of our lost trenches.

"Of the Vosges and northwest of Sennheim battles are proceeding."

THREATEN METZ.

The continued pressure of the French toward Metz may result soon in a heavy German offensive, according to military experts here.

Day by day the French announce small bit of a few yards gained near Pont-a-Mousson or Apremont. Each of these advances, small though it may be, is a tightening of the vise on the German line on the St. Mihiel salient and irregular V from Metz to St. Mihiel, and observers say the German staff must soon take steps to relieve the situation or run the grave risk of seeing their corps that is holding the point on the Meuse.

That the Germans are strongly protected on this slender line is admitted. For three months they have had their forces facing the whole west of France, occasionally even forcing a passage of the Meuse, only to lose it again. But all the while the French pressure from the north and south has been continued, narrowing the channel of communications with Metz has now narrowed, according to the belief here, only one road leads from the Lorraine stronghold to the advance point. The loss of this road would mean the instant cutting off of the big force near St. Mihiel and the virtual defeat of the German effort to encircle Verdun.

In this connection the Berlin reports of yesterday stated that more trenches were captured in the Argonne, but the Paris communique says these trenches were retaken by the French.

AUSTRIANS FALL BACK.

Austrian troops that were sent into Bukowina to stem the Russian invasion of Hungary are falling back toward Jacobini, according to Petrograd advices, but the fighting in that district is still without decisive results, as the Austrians are offering fierce resistance. Dispatches from field headquarters state that the Russians hold the pass at Mount Colacul. The troops fighting in the mountainous districts of Bukowina are handicapped by the terrific cold and snow storms.

It is reported that Field Marshal von Hindenburg, the commander-in-chief of the Austro-German forces, is sending German troops to reinforce the Austrians in Bukowina.

North of the Vistula Grand Duke Nicholas' new army is pressing vigorously against the Germans and the possibility of another invasion of East Prussia near Thorn is within the range of possibilities.

Along the Bzura furious night fighting is reported. The Germans holding a position on the left bank of this stream are making desperate efforts to retain the Russian lines, all their assaults have been repulsed.

LOOK FOR NEW MOVE.

Petrograd voices the belief that Field Marshal von Hindenburg will be compelled to after completely his plan of campaign in Poland as a result of the spread of the Russian advance across a line stretching from Mlawa to Serpetz and Plotsk. The German commander is massing heavy forces around Plotsk, which lies at the doubtless use during the next fortnight for surprise purposes.

Petrograd reports that Austrian detachments in the Carpathians are constantly being forced back by the Russian lines and many bodies of soldiers who were frozen to death are being found.

The following official statement was given out at Petrograd relative to operations in Trans-Caucasia against the Turks:

"Successful combats have occurred in the Ahalik, Lavsor and Kyagani districts with the Turkish rear guard. We took many prisoners. We also occupied the Turkish camp at Ardacanitch. On the 19th a Russian torpedo boat sank twelve Turkish merchant ships."

Hudson Maxim Sees No Hope to Germany from Zeppelins

By HUDSON MAXIM.

Inventor of the smokeless powder and other powerful explosives used by the United States government.

The German air raid on England on Tuesday fully demonstrates the impracticability of the Zeppelin as an engine of war.

Germany has been threatening to blow up the British Isles with the bombs that her great gas bags might drop out of the heavens. I dare say many thousands of timid Anglo-Saxons have prayed against the coming of that fatal day.

Now, at last, the much-vaunted and long-anticipated Zeppelin invasion has come, and what is the result? Four peaceful citizens killed and about $10,000 worth of property damaged.

Indeed, I believe that this sort of fighting which Germany thought would throw the British into a state of terror and perhaps hasten the day of Teuton victory will do England far more good than harm. It will arouse the British to the still greater need of being armed to the teeth.

RAID STIRS PATRIOTISM.

It will encourage enlistment. England has had so much peace talk during the last few years that it needs just such a spur to rouse it to the practical needs of the time, to the necessity of mustering all its martial strength for the overthrow of the enemy.

I was asked not long ago what would happen if a German dirigible should drop bombs on the House of Parliament or Westminster Abbey. My questioner was a man who had great faith in aerial attacks, and believed the future was would be settled by rains of fire out of the skies. I laughed at him.

I said that even if a Zeppelin should drop the most powerful explosive that could be carried by such air craft into the very middle of the House of Parliament, it would simply break some glass and perhaps blow a hole in the floor.

I called attention to some dynamite outrage which had been perpetrated not long before in one of England's historic buildings, and although much as twenty-five pounds of dynamite was exploded the concussion simply smashed the windows and shattered a bit of the building exterior.

MUST NOT BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY.

Even if Germany could send a hundred Zeppelins a day to London and each one blew up a house (which, of course, they could not do), this would wreck only 36,500 buildings during a whole year. As 50,000 buildings are erected in London every year the Zeppelins would only cut down the normal growth of the city a little more than half.

There are four reasons why an aerial attack is inconsequential and not really to be regarded seriously.

1. The explosion of the aerial bomb is like an inverted cone. Its force rebounds and escapes upward. Only a small point of force is thrust downward. Not unless the bomb can be hurled so as to penetrate an object before exploding can it effect much destruction.

2. The airship cannot aim accurately. It is moving forward perhaps thirty-five miles an hour. Consequently the bomb is carried forward as well as downward by the force of gravitation. Unless the marksman is exceptionally fortunate he cannot hit what he aims at. He strikes therefore in a haphazard fashion.

3. Nearly always these aerial raids are conducted at night, which adds still further to the likelihood of failure.

4. The Zeppelin is a slow, unwieldy craft, and is therefore exposed to counter attack from the more agile aeroplane or the fire of high angle fire from the earth.

ONLY EFFECT A MORAL ONE.

I believe that the Germans must have realized that their aerial warships could not really work much material harm, and have planned these raids more for their moral effect upon the British.

In this I believe Germany has made a great blunder. She has misestimated the nature and temper of the Anglo-Saxon lion. Most times the great beast appears more or less stolid and does not show his teeth. But twist his tail and you find a roaring monster. The Zeppelin will do just this.

The effect of explosives in the open was well shown by the accident in Park avenue some years ago. A magazine from which dynamite was being taken for subway use blew up, and the detonation was so great that a good fraction of the town thought that the rest of it had been blown to bits.

Yet, after the smoke blew away and people came back to their senses, they found that a most remarkably small amount of damage and loss of life had resulted. Although the windows of a neighboring hotel were blown out almost clean, only one man in the hotel was killed, and his death was caused not by the concussion of gases, but because he had been hit by a loosened beam.

RESCUES 50 AT FIRE IN HOTEL

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 21.—One woman was overcome by smoke and several persons were rescued by William Alexander, a bellboy, during a two-alarm fire, which caused a damage of $5,000 to the Russell House at No. 226 Main street, early today.

The fire was discovered by Alexander. The hotel halls were rapidly filling with clouds of dense smoke.

The bellboy drove the elevator through the smokefield well, stopping at each floor to arouse the guests. He made several trips and carried over fifty persons to the street floor in safety.

After he had displayed this heroism, he remembered that Mrs. John E. Edgar, the wife of the proprietor, was asleep on the fourth floor. He rushed to her room. In the meantime, Mrs. Edgar had been carried to the street by firemen.

Alexander grasped his way around the room, which was a raging furnace and could find no trace of the woman. He stumbled to leave the building, but found that he had been trapped by the flames. The smoke was gradually weakening him. Finally he reached the window ledge and was about to plunge when Fireman William N. Blythe and William Williams went to his rescue and carried him down a ladder to the street. He was treated by a physician and later taken to the Cooley House.

LACK OF SAFETY COST 134 LIVES

Failure of employers to install "Safety First" methods cost the lives of 134 employes last year and also lost an opportunity to save $1,806,600 in insurance, according to the Industrial Accident Board.

The lives of 608 employes were snuffed out by industrial accidents. This is an increase of 28.2 per cent. of the number of lives lost in 1913, which was 474.

"This increase is alarmingly high," says the board, "and is undoubtedly due to the failure of employers to take greater interest in the safety first work which the Industrial Accident Board is fostering."

Under the workmen's compensation act benefits were paid to injured employes and their beneficiaries amounting to $2,229,521.84, making a total of $3,976,902.68 paid in the two years that the act has been in operation.

"The board finds that the failure of employers to respond to its efforts to organize committees of safety and remove the causes of preventable injuries, an opportunity to effect a possible saving of $1,800,000 annually in insurance costs has been lost," the board says.

The board's report shows that the aggregate number of days lost last year from industrial accidents was 1,197,737. Added to the total of the preceding year, this makes a total of 7,859 working years.

"Not just a flavor—but a wholesome nourishing addition to fowl, game, meat and fish."

Society Attends Kermesse in Aid of the Belgians

Dorothy Jordan Dances at Fair This Afternoon

ROCKEFELLER'S WIFE STRICKEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—In the great castle at Pocantico—monument as much to her splendid womanhood as to her husband's business genius—Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, attended by kindred and physicians, is undergoing the persistent though painless decline that attends malignant anemia.

Mrs. Rockefeller, one of the most retiring women in the world, was seventy-five years old last September. She has been in failing health for several years, the first breakdown dating from the nation-wide attacks on the Standard Oil Company and the resultant criticism of her husband's business methods.

The public has been unaware how great was her silent influence and interest in the financial prodigies accomplished by her husband. But coincident with the dissolution of the Standard Oil Corporation, one by one, the innumerable private charities which she so modestly concealed from the world were turned over to the conduct of Miss Spelman, her sister. Mrs. Rockefeller was still interested in them, but was physically unable to give them attention.

The subtlety of the disease gives emphasis to rumors that Mrs. Rockefeller is very seriously ill, although there is said to be no cause for immediate alarm. Her age is a great impediment to successful treatment by her physicians.

CASCARETS CURE HEADACHE, COLDS, CONSTIPATION

Get a 10-cent box.

Take a Cascaret tonight to cleanse your liver, Stomach and Bowels and you will surely feel great by morning. You meet any women who have headache, coated tongue, a bad cold, are bilious, nervous, upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out. Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, indigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels.

Remember—a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means healthy bowel action, a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.—Advertisement.

Constipation and Sluggish Liver

They cure constipation, banish indigestion, drive out biliousness and the blues, stop dizziness, clear the complexion, put a healthy glow on the cheek and sparkle in the eye. There are many imitations. Be sure and get CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. The pill is small, dose is small, price is small, but results are great.

Belgian Lace-Makers at Work in Hall Show Smart Set Clever Designs.

The Kermesse Flamande in Horticultural Hall, in aid of the Belgians, will be a mecca for society again today, for dances by Miss Dorothy Jordan are featured on the afternoon program. Other numbers will be music by the Bostonian quartet and Belle Yeaton Renfrew's orchestra; dances and songs arranged by Mrs. W. S. Butler; performances by members of the Toy Theatre company; songs by Harrison Bennett; fencing by Mrs. Cass' fencing girls, and dancing by Mme. Aleta.

In the evening there will be songs by Mrs. Anne Roberts Barker, soprano, Mrs. Alexina Carter-Harrell, Miss Bessie Talbot Salmon and the Boston University Glee Club, and folk dances of the allied nations.

Much sympathy was expressed for Professor Henri Lichtenberger, Sorbonne exchange professor at Harvard University, who presented "Le Miracle de St. Nicholas," an old French legend of Santa Claus. He was assisted by a company of ten. It was thought this engagement would have to be cancelled as Professor Lichtenberger had just received a cable announcing the death of his daughter in Paris. The father than disappoint the large audience he personally conducted the act. He sails abroad Saturday.

The candy booth is in charge of Mrs. Augustus N. Rantoul. The Salem Shop is directed by the Misses Rantoul. Girls with baskets pass through the crowd, placing nosegays onto every lapel. They are in charge of Mrs. Wilbur Haggett.

At the flower booth are Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Mademoiselle Vanden Broeck, Mrs. Howard Elliott and Mrs. R. D. Sears.

LACEMAKERS AT WORK.

Of special interest to the younger set is the peasant doll tea room.

One of the most interesting exhibitions is at the lace booth, where women from the Flemish part of Belgium show how the lace is made for which their country is famous. Two of these lacemakers are octogenarians, though they ply their hundred wooden needles as deftly as their youngest competitors.

A small butterfly or other dainty design constitutes a day's work. In Belgium these women worked from twelve to fourteen hours per day for thirty cents.

The tea dance was in charge of Mrs. Homer Richardson, assisted by young society girls who served tea.

Miss Pauline Chamberlain and William Chamberlain gave exhibition dancing.

A vaudeville performance included orchestral music, dances by Miss Mildred R. Macomber, Miss Dorothy Jordan, Mme. Aleta and A. C. Jones; songs by Miss Jeanne D. d'Arbeil and Mrs. Laura Littlefield; flute and harpsichord solos by Mr. McKnight and Mr. Adams; solo, "Chanson d'amour," A. Gietzen, violin solo, Mme. Marie Nichols; fencing exhibition, Mrs. Eleanor Baldwin Cass' fencing girls, and members of the Cyril Maude company and the Jewett Players in monologues and dialogues.

The main hall, representing Louvain square in its days of prosperity, was lined with booths, designed by well-known Boston scene painters.

A lay figure serving as grab bag was in charge of Mrs. Boylston Beale, and Mrs. Kirk Boott presided over the books, photographs and the Belgian and Holland ware booth.

Herbert Jaques is in general charge of the "Kermesse," which is open from 10 a. m. till 10 p. m. for the rest of the week.

Mme. Havenith, wife of the Belgian minister to the United States, heads the list of patronesses.

Hub Society Folk At Hoyt Wedding

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Many Boston society people attended the wedding of Miss Elisabeth Sherman Hoyt, daughter of Henry Reese Hoyt of No. 2 East Seventy-fifth street, to Thomas Harris Frothingham of Philadelphia, at St. Bartholomew's Church. Bishop Greer officiated, assisted by Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks. The bride's attendants included Miss Rose Saltonstall and Mrs. George S. West of Boston. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Guild of Boston.

Police Probe Plunge of South End Woman

An investigation has been started into the case of Mrs. Minnie Finn, a lodger at No. 57 Waltham street, who ran screaming to the fire escape in the rear of that building, leaped across to a window ledge, and failing to force her way into the window, clung to a water pipe until finally she lost her balance and fell to the alleyway below. She is on the dangerous list at the City Hospital.

Walsh Addresses Men of Cambridge

Governor Walsh, former State Treasurer Mansfield and Mayor Good of Cambridge addressed the Cambridge Catholic Union at its annual banquet at the American House. Albert E. Good presided. Other speakers were the Revs. Michael J. Doody and John Ryan.

SHERIFFS BALKED IN FRESH HUNT

HOULTON, Jan. 21.—There was considerable excitement in Houlton when it became known that Deputy Guion and Deputy Brown went to Smyrna Mills to follow a clew which might throw some light on the disappearance of Deputy Sheriff Harold Hillman. Deputy Guion on his return, however, said:

"The clew has been followed up and Deputy Brown and I are satisfied the parties in Smyrna Mills had no guilty knowledge of Deputy Hillman's disappearance."

Dr. Hunt, the Eastport man who claims he can find the body in two days, is in Island Falls. He is conducting his search alone and has very little to say to the citizens of the town, although he does acknowledge he is there to locate the body of the missing deputy.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Advertisement.

her $50. When was that? A.—July 6, 1910.

Q.—From July 6, 1910, until what date did Miss Ryan stay with you? A.—From July 6, 1910, until the next five or six months, with the exception of trips which she made to New York off and on.

Q.—Now during that visit commencing in July, 1910, and continuing for some months was a Mr. Morrill at Ferncroft Inn? A.—A short time.

Q.—During that Summer did you go about with Miss Ryan? A.—Some; not very much, because I was busy working.

Q.—Did she have the use of automobiles and chauffeur? A.—At times, when the chauffeur and automobiles were not busy in the service of the inn.

Q.—At the time who was the chauffeur? A.—Edward Scampton.

Q.—Is he in court? A.—I saw him come in this morning.

Q.—When did he cease his employment with you? A.—In September.

MADE TRIPS TO NEW YORK.

Now do you remember in 1910 when Miss Ryan went to New York? A.—Yes. She made three or four trips to New York.

Q.—How long in duration? A.—Three, four or five days.

Q.—Now in reference to the trips to New York, what conversation did she have with you about them? A.—She said she wanted to see some shows in New York.

Q.—And during those four months, following July 10, did Miss Ryan purchase clothes? A.—Yes.

Q.—And had you a judgment as to how much clothes she bought? A.—I gave her a regular allowance.

Cooksley: Just a minute.

Sullivan: Tell about the clothes?

A.—I gave her money and I don't know whether she spent it for the clothing.

Q.—Did you have a talk with her about an allowance? A.—I did.

Q.—When? A.—The week after she arrived.

ALLOWANCE OF $50.

Q.—What was the talk? A.—She asked me if I would make her an allowance of $50.

Q.—How would you pay? A.—Every Monday after breakfast we would be at the table and she would say: "Come; that allowance is due."

Q.—Did you give the allowance to her when she said: "Come"? A.—I usually gave it to her some time before dinner.

Q.—What did you say to her about the allowance after you gave it to her for some time? A.—I told her she shouldn't be sending me C. O. D. bundles. I told her from now on I'd give her $75 a week and that she was not to send any more C. O. D. bundles.

Q.—Tell the jury the number of C. O. D. bundles you received for her? A.—I remember one. This was an opera cape from New York. It cost $35. There were one or two more.

Q.—Do you recollect the other C. O. D. bundles and what was any worth? A.—I remember one, worth about $25.

Q.—What did she say after you called her attention to the C. O. D. bundles? A.—She said if I gave her $75 allowance she would get along all right on the clothes.

Q.—During that Summer did you give her that money regularly? A.—I did.

CHECKS ON SALEM BANK.

Q.—On what banks were the checks made out? A.—The Salem Safe Deposit and Trust Company of Salem, Mass.

Q.—Where did you keep your return checks? A.—In a large upper drawer of a writing cabinet.

Q.—In what room? A.—In a room used as an office.

Q.—During the Summer of 1910 were the checks in that drawer? A.—Yes.

Q.—Some time in the latter part of December did Miss Ryan go to New York? A.—She went away either on December 22 or 29 or around the first of January.

Q.—Do you remember what the talk was on that occasion? A.—It was just about her wanting to see shows in New York.

Q.—Did she tell you she was going to New York or New Haven on that occasion? A.—On that trip she was to stop in New Haven and go on to New York.

Q.—Was anything said about how long she was to stay? A.—Not as I remember.

DENIES MARRIAGE TALK.

Q.—Any talk that Summer in reference to marriage? A.—There had not been.

Q.—Did you hear from Miss Ryan after she left on that trip previous to your seeing her again? A.—I've got to change that date, now that I remember. It was either January 5—let me see, January 2 or 3. I remember that New Year's in 1911 was coming in; she was there at the inn, as I remember; I may not be sure about that.

Q.—Did you and she have some trouble on that New Year's night? A.—No.

Q.—Having in mind it was January 5 did you correspond with her? A.—I wrote her.

Q.—Did she reply? A.—I received no letter in reply.

Q.—From the time you wrote had she been at Ferncroft? A.—She had not.

Q.—Have you that letter, Mr. Cooksley, between January 3 and 18? Cooksley: That's 1911."

Cooksley secured the package of letters from the clerk.

DENIES HE HAD LETTER.

Q.—Now, Mr. Mansfield, did I understand you to say you received no letter from her after January 5 when she left? A.—No.

Q.—When in reference to January 5 did you write a letter? A.—January 18, 1911.

Q.—Now between January 5 and January 18 you had not heard from her? A.—I won't say that.

Q.—Now some time in January did you have a fire at Ferncroft? A.—January 17, 1911, it was.

Cooksley: We have no letter between January 5 and January 18.

Q.—When Miss Ryan left Ferncroft Inn, do you remember what baggage she took with her? A.—I have no recollection. I know she left very little.

Q.—Previous to January 17, did you know of Miss Ryan having letters sho received from you? A.—I did not.

Q.—Previous to the fire had you and she a talk in reference to any letter she received from you? A.—Never.

APARTMENT DESTROYED.

Q.—Was the apartment you occupied totally destroyed? A.—Absolutely.

Q.—Where did you address the letter to her? A.—I addressed it to her brother-in-law, Mr. King, care of Mr. King, New Haven.

Mansfield told of writing a letter to Miss Ryan after the fire. He said he asked her to write him the value of anything she had at Ferncroft so that he might use the list in adjusting the insurance. He said he got no message in return but saw her in New York seven or ten days later.

Q.—In your letter of the eighteenth, was anything said about marriage? A.—There was not.

Q.—How did you start the letter? A.—Either "Dear Bess" or "My dear Bess."

Q.—How did you sign it? A.—"Love Harry" or something like that.

DIDN'T SIGN "GRANDPA."

Q.—You didn't sign it "Grandpa"? A.—I did not.

Q.—Where did you meet her after the fire? A.—In the lobby of the Hotel Knickerbocker.

In answered to other questions he said:

"She was alone. I said, 'Hello, you are a stranger.' She said, 'Lots has passed since I last saw you.' It was about 2:30 in the afternoon. I stayed there a short time. I said, 'Let's go to Sherry's.' We went to the main dining room there and stayed an hour or more. I asked her where she was going that night and invited her to the theatre. She said she had an engagement. I told her I would shift over that night and not return to Boston. I went with her to the home of Miss Hemptstone. I think it was The Remington. I met Miss Hemptstone there for the first time. After five or ten minutes Miss Hemptstone went into another room. We talked about the fire and I asked her why she was doing in New York."

Q.—Did you have any other talk? A.—I asked, in a joking way, "Have you have insurance on your stuff?" she said, "No, but you will have to fix me up for everything I lost." I told her I would see to it after matters were fixed up. While I was there a bellboy came in with a paper for Miss Ryan said, "Here in the new dress Mr. —— bought me to wear to-night." I said, "Let's see it." She opened the box and took out the dress. It was very handsome. I asked how much it cost. She said it was bought at wholesale and cost $150, and that Mr. —— had bought it for her to wear that night. She said she was going to the theatre—I don't recollect which one—perhaps it was the opera. She told me that after the theatre she was going to the Cafe de l'Opera, at the time called Louis Martin's. She asked me to drop in there and perhaps I would see her after the theatre. I told her perhaps I would.

DENIES MARRIAGE TALK.

Q.—At any time was there any talk of marriage? A.—No.

Q.—Any expression of affection? A.—Yes, I kissed her two or three times.

Q.—Did she kiss you? A.—She did.

Q.—When did you next see her? A.—In the lobby of Martin's that night. Mansfield said he went to Martin's with a friend and dined on the second floor as he had no evening dress.

Continuing Mansfield said:

"It was about 12:30, as we were getting our hats and coats. Miss Ryan came toward us from the dining room."

Q.—How about the dress you had seen that afternoon? A.—She had on the dress she had shown me.

NEW-YORK LIFE INSURANCE CO.

346 Broadway, New York

SEVENTIETH ANNUAL REPORT

TO THE POLICY-HOLDERS AND THE PUBLIC:

The New-York Life is international in its activities. It has outstanding business in all the civilized countries of the world.

You naturally want to know, at first hand, what effect the unprecedented conditions in Europe have had, or may hereafter have, on the Company. A correct picture of the whole situation is this:

We have about a million policy-holders in all the world. Eighty per cent. of the total live in the United States and Canada. The remainder, twenty per cent., are scattered over the rest of the world. They are located largely in Europe, including both the belligerent and the neutral countries. Their age, on the average, is about forty-seven. In this, as in all wars, the heavy mortality falls on youth,—young men averaging about twenty-two stand on the firing line.

In Russia, Servia and Japan our policy provisions protect us fully against all war risk. In Great Britain we have done little business for ten years and the age of our insured reduces the war risk to the vanishing point.

Our war risk, therefore, is practically limited to Germany, France, Belgium and Austria-Hungary. In all of these countries policies issued prior to 1899 carry a clause which substantially eliminates the war risk.

Of the policies issued at a later date there were in force in these countries at the outbreak of hostilities about 15,600, held by men whose attained age—that is the present age—was between seventeen and thirty-nine inclusive—about 1¼% of our membership.

We estimate the number of policies outstanding in these four countries on the lives of men between seventeen and thirty and having no clause limiting the war risk, at 2,600, representing not more than 2,400 lives, or about ¼ of one per cent. of our membership.

Our death losses incurred in 1914, including an extra reserve of $500,000 for losses probably incurred but not reported, were 73% of the amount provided in the premiums for the mortality of that year. In 1913, when we had no war claims, our mortality was also 73% of the amount provided. In 1912 it was 76%.

The total war losses actually incurred to December, 31, 1914, including the countries where our risk is abundantly covered by policy conditions or otherwise, according to information obtained by both letter and cable, amounted to a little less than 2% of the total death losses for the year.

You may have been told that the Company would suffer because of its foreign investments. This is not true. Our foreign investments, limited as they are to Government Bonds and high grade municipals, have naturally fallen in price, but not appreciably more than domestic securities.

No security issued by or in any country engaged in this war and held by us is in default of either principal or interest.

If the same statement with regard to American securities could be made by this and other American Life Insurance Companies, as well as by our Hospitals, Universities, and by Trustees generally, the financial outlook would be brighter.

There is no reason to believe that we shall ever lose a dollar, principal or interest, on our foreign investments.

The greatest single effect of the war on the New-York Life is to demonstrate, as perhaps no other condition could, not merely the Company's strength, but its social usefulness.

Since August first last, the Company has administered an extent of practical beneficence which surpasses the limits of exact statement.

In spite of unprecedented difficulties—difficulties which have actually destroyed a large part of the commerce of the world, disarranged international credits, and shattered international relations—we have met every obligation and satisfied every just claim. After the first period of strangulation of credit passed, we disregarded all moratoria or other governmental decrees under which we might have postponed payments to policy-holders or beneficiaries.

Since the first of August we have advanced money to policy-holders as loans on their policies as follows:

	No. of Loans	Amount of Loans
In the United States and Canada	49,275	$14,256,565
In Europe	7,498	2,965,040
In other foreign countries	2,314	660,410

Policy-holders at home have been helped in about the same proportion to outstanding insurance that has ruled in Europe. We have all felt the war here most keenly. No considerable business has escaped.

It has been the good fortune of our membership to relieve suffering humanity, without charity, over a wider portion of the earth than ever before—perhaps to a degree never before equaled by any human institution.

In life insurance as exemplified by the New-York Life there is more than the germ of that world federation of peoples by which alone this European Horror can be so ended that it will never be repeated.

There have been years in which the New-York Life did more business than in 1914, but there has never been a year in which it did so much good.

The Company enters upon the year 1915 with its resources not only unimpaired but increased, with its assets liquid and available as against every contingency.

We have issued our Report for 1914 in condensed form and during the calendar year it will be sent to policyholders generally. It will be sent to anyone on request.

Attention is called to the following facts:

Assets (Market values), Dec. 31, 1914		$790,935,395.61

COURT HEARS HOGAN PLEA FOR NAME

Business and Social Reasons Given as Petitioner's Basis.

at it, talked a while, and then decided that they didn't need a stenographer. I learned later that they did hire a girl, however, and she was a Jewish girl, at that.

SAYS SHE'S FULL OF ROMANCE.

Q.—Your father was a Catholic, was he not, when your mother first met him? A.—Yes, but when she met him in a romantic way he was not a Catholic.

Q.—You are quite full of romance, are you not, Miss Hogan? A.—Yes, I am, isn't that natural?

Miss Hogan told of other incidents where she thought she failed to get a position because of her name.

"Then I told the director of an employment agency I was a Protestant," said Miss Hogan. "She was surprised."

Miss Hogan finally got a job.

"Were there any Catholic stenographers where you worked?" asked Attorney Cox.

"Yes, when I came in I heard the manager say, 'What, another one.'"

CALLED AN IRISH TRAITOR.

Q.—Was there any unpleasantness on account of your name? A.—One of the girls called me an Irish traitor.

Q.—What did she mean by that? A.—I suppose she meant that I had an Irish-Catholic name but had become a Protestant. I was in wrong with the Catholic girls. They said I should be a Catholic.

Q.—Now as to the literary life, in what way was your name a detriment? A.—I wanted to join a literary club made up of Protestant girls. My name was handed in, but I was not accepted because they said I was not a Protestant. It was a case of "birds of a feather flock together."

SNUBBED BY A "SELECT" PARTY.

Q.—Can you state another case where your name stood in your way? A.—Yes; there was a party to which I expected an invitation. I knew most of the young people who were going, but I received no invitation. I understood afterward that the hostess was ashamed to invite me because I had an Irish name. The party was very select.

Q.—Would you keep company with a young man who bore an Irish Catholic name? A.—I would try to have him change it.

Q.—Do you attend the Episcopal Church? A.—I have.

Q.—Where do you attend now? A.—I go to the People's Temple.

Q.—Do you think Mr. Brady's (the janitor) name is a detriment to him? A.—I cannot speak for him.

Q.—Do you belong to any other social organizations? A.—Yes, the Albermarle Dramatic Club.

Q.—Are there any Catholic members? A.—Yes, one.

CATHOLIC MEMBER POPULAR.

Q.—Is she treated any differently than the other members? A.—No; in fact she is very much liked.

Q.—Is there any other incident which reflected upon you on account of your name? A.—Yes, I can remember some on remarking, when they heard my name, something about Dublin Stout. I didn't think that very nice.

Q.—You are not in the habit of taking Dublin Stout, are you? A.—No, I'm not.

"You are in the habit of keeping company with young men, are you not?" A.—That's neither here nor there.

Q.—How long did you stay in the first position you received? A.—Two and a half years.

Q.—What was the name of the place where you applied and were turned down? A.—The Royal Typewriter Company.

Q.—What was the name of the other place? A.—I don't remember. It was an automobile supply company, now out of business.

MANY IRISH STENOGRAPHERS.

Q.—I suppose you know there are a great many Irish Catholic stenographers in the city? A.—I do, but I don't know them personally.

Q.—You went to the public schools, I suppose? A.—Yes, to the Everett High School.

Q.—There was no reflection on any girl in that school because she was an Irish Catholic? A.—Yes, I remember an incident. Let me tell it to you.

"One moment, please," said Shanley "We will excuse the incident."

Q.—Was there any other time? A.—Yes, there was another time.

Q.—What was that? A.—A young girl in the school told me about another girl who had a hard time getting along because she had an Irish name. It was too bad; she was such a nice girl.

There was particular interest among the spectators today for the daughters' statements, because Mrs. Hogan said yesterday that one of her daughters was refused admittance to a literary club in Wakefield on account of her name, which the club girls took to be Irish and Catholic.

The mother's testimony occupied much of the opening session.

Mrs. Hogan gave the following reasons for wanting her name changed:

An alley celebrated in song and story was called Hogan.

A woman from whom she sought to hire an apartment objected to a Hogan nameplate on the door.

Servants declined to enter her employ upon hearing her name.

The name had caused her disappointment, humiliation and sorrow.

She was often forced to explain about her name to people she met.

Her eldest daughter was barred from a literary club because of her name.

She would be much happier to be known as Mrs. Homan.

Mrs. Hogan expressed her views with emphasis. She objected so frequently to answering questions that Judge George told her he might have to strike out much of her testimony.

Mrs. Hogan was questioned by Attorney S. H. Shanely, who appeared as "a friend of the court."

"Where were you married, Mrs. Hogan?"

"In Roman."

"Are you Catholic?"

"I am certainly not a Catholic. I was christened in the Episcopal church as were my father and mother before me."

"Do you know of any circumstances which you can tell the Court why you desire to drop the name of Hogan?"

"Yes, I have with me a petition to this effect, but this name has caused me much humiliation and sorrow. It is very misleading.

"My children have searched for employment and would be virtually employed, but when they told their names some flimsy excuse would be given and then they would come home in tears.

"Now, you say that people refused to let suites. Has anyone refused you within the last ten years?"

"Yes, in Portland, Me., because they wanted a Protestant American family and they thought I was Irish and a Catholic. Then there were two instances in Malden."

"Where?"

"I couldn't give the street."

"The second occasion, do you know the street and name of the party?"

"No, my sister went for me."

"When you went to Westland avenue they didn't ask you whether you were Irish or American or Protestant or Catholic, did they?"

"No; there are places where they do not ask."

HOLEPROOF HOSIERY CONTEST

$20 in Gold

For the four stories, either poetry or prose, of not over 100 words, best describing the merits of "Holeproof." 1st prize $10; 2d prize $5; 3d and 4th prizes, each, $2.50.

One of the Good Ones Submitted:

DAINTY DORA

She wears a pair of walking shoes
Of brown—or else black or taupe;
She does two hearty hunting boots
In summer at the camps.

At times some charming dancing pumps
Encase her "footsies" slim,
And bathing slippers are her choice
When she goes in to swim.

Now horseback riding in the Fens
Gives her much keen delight,
For high boots varnished skilfully
Are brilliant to the sight.

"But all the while, on land or sea,
Or in the country lane,
I always wear my HOLEPROOF HOSE,"
Says Dainty Dora Dane.

'COMMON CLAY' FROM REAL LIFE

When Cleves Kinkead, author of "Common Clay," the Harvard prize play now running at the Castle Square Theatre, used as a basis to slip away to the "Roost" of one of the Louisville theatres, his friend Bernard Carter, "The Judge," was most grieved for his son's spiritual welfare.

But when that sad, twenty-six years later, won the Harvard prize for the best play of the year, the same "Judge" packed his grip, donned his silk hat and started for Boston to see what the boy had done to bring fame to the name of Kinkead.

When asked if he didn't think his father, who is to arrive tomorrow, would be shocked when he found that frankly the play deals with matters usually considered private, the author smiled as a son may smile when thinking of "dear old dad," and flatly remarked that his father would like it all because it was the work of his son.

Cleves Kinkead, himself, has no apologies to make for his drama and its moral.

"I had an idea or two and I think I got them across," he asserted, thereby showing that he has already acquired theatrical parlance.

"Then, of course, he was asked what three principal ideas are that he believes he "got across" the footlights at the Castle Square.

"In the first place, I guess no one sees the third act through," he said, "without feeling that personal interest has a great deal to do with our attitude toward what is right or wrong and may make of one who was a success before a disreputable woman, a child for whom a father can have with deep affection."

Kinkead grew reminiscent and talking of his past as newspaper reporter, lawyer and legislator back in Kentucky.

What I have put in 'Common Clay' is out of real life, my life. As reporter I learned something of what extreme means to poor girls who live in slums and long for something different; as lawyer I discovered that morality and ethics are made to conform to the client's case; as legislator I found out that the best and kindest men change into angry, selfish individualists when their own peculiar interests are threatened.

In Helen Neal you have the tenement girl whose life was being ruined in Judge Filson (defending Arthur Coakley is the lawyer who will blacken the girl to save his client) and in Richard Fullerton may be seen the wealthy father, influential citizen, enraged one moment at the idea of his son marrying the girl, and the next moment applauding the idea of another man marrying her.

It's all out of life, and I think the audience feels it. It appears that way to me when I sit in the pit, as I quite often do, many times and look about me. I watch them when they get real mad over some line or scene, and then I see them forget it and lean forward not to miss a scene that has caught their interest.

"There is another idea I tried to bring out, and that is the rights of women. You see, I am a strong believer in suffrage. I don't say so right out in the play, but the women know that I am with them and they are coming to see 'Common Clay' in a way that gratifies me.

Drive Catarrh Germs From Nose and Throat

Only Way to Really Cure Catarrh, Say Noted Specialists.

The germs of catarrh breed, thrive and multiply by the million far up in the nose and throat. Those germs and their poisons are what cause catarrh. Catarrh is a germ disease, and you cannot get rid of the disease until you get rid of the germs. The noted specialists seem agreed on this point.

You can't kill germs with ointments or lotions, etc., which you sniff up your nose. Those only cover your head and let you breathe easier, but they do not reach the germs. Stomach dosing may purify your blood, but it doesn't kill the germs nor does it cure catarrh.

There is but one way, scientists say, and invariably reliable way, to reach and destroy catarrh germs and thus stop catarrh. That is with Hyomei. This medicine, thrust into the mouth and breathed through the little hard rubber inhaler which is made from the pure, healthful oil of the Australian pine tree, is a powerful germicidal inhalant which kills certain death to every catarrh germ they reach. The air of Hyomei breathed in with each breath treating it reaches into every nook, corner and crevice of your nose, throat and lungs where germs can possibly hide. Every last germ is destroyed. Then the healing balm of Hyomei goes to work to soothe, heal, clear and strengthen the membranes themselves. They don't like it, simply can't stand it and soon begin to shrivel and die, taking catarrh itself with them. Hyomei is a delightful, pleasant, healing balm that has caused many a smile of delight at the thought of how that Hyomei-Inhaler Drug Store guarantee has brought relief to so many. You don't have to buy anything except Hyomei, and you sell it with no definite guarantee of success. Full dose of Hyomei lasts for months and therefore amounts are cut in giving it a trial. That fact is one of the reasons why we are able to say to your druggist as you ask for Hyomei, "Sell it to us on his (or the customer's) guarantee this contains a Piso inhaling device which is guaranteed to cure." Piso's Cure for Consumption, Piso's Cough Drops, Piso's Laxative Cold Tablets.—Advertisement.

Thin Folks Who Would Be Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More

A Physician's Advice

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," said a man who is excessively thin man or woman. Such a result is impossible, despite past failures. Thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, all the fat and flesh producing elements pass on in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal amount of fat the nutritive elements must be artificially supplied with the power which will make them assimilate. This can best be accomplished by taking Sargol tablets with every meal. Sargol is a scientific combination of six of the most fat-producing, fat-digesting elements known to the medical profession. Taken with meals, it mixes with the food and turns the sugars and starches into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect is remarkable. Reported gains of four pounds in seven days, ten pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by good druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Caution.—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in the treatment of nervous indigestion and general stomach disorders, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh producing effect, be used by those who are not willing to increase their weight ten pounds or more.—Advertisement.

Nervous Periodical Headaches

Succumb to Anti-Kamnia Tablets

This trouble commonly called "sick headache," is said to be due to the retention of urea in the system. Often it is stated that a poor condition of the blood is the cause of these headaches, or that it is a nervous condition; and in certain cases, no doubt this is true.

Where treatment is demanded, it is more for the pain than anything else, and Dr. A. F. Schallschmidt of Louisville, has found Anti-Kamnia Tablets to give prompt and satisfactory relief. "Rest often gives gratefull relief, says he, "and the patient should go to bed, darken the room, and all the attendants and family should be as quiet as possible. An emetic will sometimes shorten the attack. The bowels should be kept open with "Antidote;" a hot bath and a thorough rub-down with a coarse towel often give gratefull relief. Two Anti-kamnia Tablets when the first signs appear, will usually prevent the attack. During an attack, one tablet every hour or two will shorten the attack and relieve the usual nausea and vomiting." These tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. They are also unexcelled for nervous headaches, neuralgia and all pains.

Does It Pay to Be Good?

The Answer—YES—It Pays in a Thousand Different Ways

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"I AM nineteen and am told I am pretty. I have had admirers of the opposite sex, but have been so unfortunate as to meet only the type of man who is called 'fast.' These young men often say to me: 'Why are you so quiet?' And my girl friends keep telling me I am too slow and that I should act as if I was 'game'—and I have tried sometimes, but I become so disgusted I could cry. Now, tell me, please—does it pay to be good? In my case it does not seem to," writes a disconsolate girl.

Yes—it actually PAYS to be good! The girl who is quiet and modest and well-behaved may miss some of the excitement her gayer and giddier sisters take to brighten their days—but she is not a prey to the fever for excitement nor is she ashamed to stop and think of herself and what she has done.

The girl who is not good urges herself on and on from one diversion and dissipation to another because she does not dare to stop to think. Her health, her nerves and her happiness die together and her future is chained to her past. I am not condemning the girl who has strayed. Often she is strong enough to reform; often society is kind enough to help her. But nothing can make her forget, nothing can restore her peace of mind or banish her remorseful musings on what her womanhood might have meant to her.

It pays to be good. It pays to be at peace with yourself, to be able to look the world proudly in the face and know it does not dare think of you disrespectfully. There is infinite satisfaction in thinking you were wise enough and clever enough to pick out a clean path in a world full of boggy, swampy ones.

It is joyous to have no dread of the debt of your own contracting and no fear of ghosts from your past.

The quiet, clear-eyed, clean-thinking, pure-living girl will in all likelihood some day be a happy wife and blessed mother. She will have the gift of her good character as well as of her love to bring to the man for whom she cares. And for her children she will have the proud heritage of her own simple strength and purity.

Let undesirable men call you "slow" and thank Heaven you have this quality to repel their dangerous interest. Let silly, weak sisters criticise you for your lack of "gameness" and then surprise them by being game enough in a good way to endure their sneers and strong enough to resist their influence for evil.

It pays to be good. And if you are not good, you will never cease paying for your weakness or wickedness.

Taken Aback

One Sunday morning a convert entered a saloon bar distributing tracts. At the back of the saloon sat an elderly man reading a newspaper. The revivalist approached the gentleman and threw one of the temperance tracts upon the paper before him. The old gentleman glanced at the tract, and then, looking up belignantly, asked: "Are you a reformed drunkard?" "No, sir, I am not!" cried the revivalist, drawing back indignantly. "Then why don't you reform?" quietly asked the old gentleman.

The Fortunes of Fanny

Fanny Refuses to Allow Joe to Walk Part Way Home with Her After Leaving Crandall

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XLVII.

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

WOMEN are not supposed to have the brute instinct to fight or inflict a physical hurt on one who injures them. Yet if such instinct had not existed in Fanny Hedden's nature she would not have felt the thrill of satisfaction with which she saw Jim Crandall knocked down by a man who had sprung at him so suddenly that she had not seen his face before he had felled her persecutor. But swift on this thrill of exultation came a fear. Suppose he was badly wounded! But as quickly this fear was dispelled as Crandall struggled to his feet. He was stout and no athlete, and he did not present a dignified spectacle as he clambered up from the dust and came toward his assailant.

Then, for the first time, Fanny glanced at the face of the man who had made himself her champion. She caught her breath sharply, as in the light cast through the dusk by the street lamp she recognized her escort of last Christmas night—Joe Brown. That the only man in the city whose attentions to her had not been akin to an insult should have witnessed the scene between her and Crandall was, she felt, one of the ironies of fate. And she had liked Joe Brown!

"Look out!" she exclaimed warningly as Crandall approached.

But Joe laughed as he faced the angry man.

"We'll fight this out!" Crandall panted, "you hound you!——"

"James!" a shrill voice rang out from an electric car which had just drawn up at the curb. The driver, a handsomely dressed woman, sprang out and joined the trio. She glanced about to see if there were any other observers before she spoke again. But her exclamation had been sufficient to check her husband's outburst and to cause his manner to change with ludicrous rapidity.

"Oh, my dear," he began, "I did not see you. I was just talking to this young lady who was once in my employ, and——"

"Another!" his wife exclaimed with a sneering laugh. "You have had six pretty girls in your employ, as you call it, that I am to be pardoned if I cannot keep track of them. I would suggest now that you come home with me—you wife. Explanations can follow later. I passed here a few minutes ago and saw you talking with this—young lady"—with a scornful glance at Fanny. "As she has another escort now, I think she will excuse you. Girls prefer young men to middle-aged ones—especially middle-aged married ones."

THE RUTH OF THE SITUATION STRIKES JOE BROWN

Had Fanny not been so overwhelmed with shame she might have smiled when she saw the abject and cowed husband follow his wife as she led the way to her brougham. But Joe—sorry as he was for the girl at his side—had an unquenchable sense of humor.

"By Genre!" he muttered. "He'll obey her—for she's got the money! I've heard of him before, and of how she trains him. He's a scoundrel—that's what he is! I'm thankful I happened to come along just in time to save you further annoyance."

Fanny tried to speak. She was trembling and her lips twitched. Was Joe Brown telling the truth? Had he not seen Jim Crandall talking to her—or did he really suppose in spite of what Mrs. Crandall had said, that the man was a stranger who had spoken to her for the first time just now?

"I want to go home," she said weakly, her voice breaking as a frightened child's might have done. "Please go on now and let me go home alone."

The young man laid a reassuring hand on her quivering fingers. "I'd rather take you home, if you don't mind," he said. "But if you don't want me to, I'll go with you only as far as your street. But I hope you'll say I can take you all the way."

"No! No!" she begged. "I want to be alone, please!"

And, turning, she went swiftly across the drive and up the slope to the street. The man did not move for a minute, but stood watching her.

"Well," he mused, "if she wants to go alone, it's my place to let her go, I suppose. But I can follow her at a distance and see that no harm comes to her. She won't know I'm within call. She's too pretty, and too innocent to go around town alone like this."

Which reflection proved that Joe Brown did not judge by appearances, but by what his inner conviction told him of a woman's character.

The pity he had felt for Fanny Hedden on Christmas night had been in his heart all the past weeks. This evening it increased as, carefully keeping a half-block behind her, he saw the girl walk rapidly down the street. He wondered where she lived now. He had been away from town on a business trip, yet when he called on Nellie and Grace at their flat on the evening after his return they had told him, in reply to his studiously nonchalant questions, that they did not know where Fanny was. The reply had made him uneasy. She seemed so pathetically alone in this big city. And now here he had met her—just when she needed him most. Life and its ways were strange. He did not know how she happened to be talking to that rascal, Crandall, but he did know that there was some good explanation of it. He knew she was the kind of a girl a man could trust.

HE MAKES A DISCOVERY IN FOLLOWING FANNY.

Once Fanny paused at a cross-street as if to go through to the car line. Then, changing her mind, hurried on. She felt that she could not endure sitting in a public conveyance while her nerves were in this tremulous state. The rapid walk might quiet her. She would let herself into a house and go to her room. She remembered gratefully that Mrs. Abbott and "the children" were dining with a relative tonight.

Joe Brown had followed her many blocks when she reached her destination. Lurking in the shadow of a flight of stone steps, he saw Fanny stop at the servants' entrance of a large apartment house, then, a moment later, the gate, inscribed "Servants," opened and closed, and she was gone. But the man did not move for several minutes after she had disappeared. At last he drew a long sigh and took off his hat. He found himself warm after his walk.

"So that's the way it is!" he muttered. "And that's why she has not told the girls where she is or what she's doing! Poor, brave little girl! Dear little girl!"

And there was something warmer than pity in his voice at the exclamation.

Up-to-Date Jokes

The incumbent of an English country vicarage had long a thorn in his side in the shape of a crusty old farmer, who delighted in opposing the vicar in every way. The parson, having been offered another living, accepted it, and, taking leave of the parish, he called upon the farmer, when he was touched by the man's evident regret.

"Why, I thought you would be glad to get rid of me!" exclaimed the vicar.

The farmer shook his head solemnly.

"Well, he said, "you see, sir, I've lived here for nigh forty years, and my experience of our parsons is that there's never a bad 'un goes but a worse 'un comes."

* * *

"This," said the guide, who was piloting a bunch of tourists through Egypt, as he pointed to the mummy, "was a high priest, the wisest man of his day. He lived to a great age."

"Was his last illness fatal?" queried the wag of the bunch.

"Of course it was," answered the guide, with a look of pity at the other.

"That's queer," rejoined the wag, with a smile, "His appearance would seem to indicate that he was permanently cured."

Mr. Newlywed and his wife were climbing one of the highest peaks in the Adirondacks, and she stood, some twenty feet above him, gazing in admiration at the wonderful view.

"What," he gasped—"what do you see?"

"Far, far below," she cried, "I see a long white streak, stretching like a paper ribbon back almost to our hotel."

"Ha, ha!" he ejaculated. "It's that hotel bill overtaking us."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LOVE AND FAITH

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl twenty-three, and am considered good looking and attractive. I am in love with a young man two years my junior, and he in return says that he loves me.

Now, Miss Fairfax, how can I tell if this young man is really in love with me. EDITH M.

WHEN a man says he loves her the girl who cares for him ought not doubt him if he treats her with absolute respect, and never suggests that she hide their affection from her own mother.

AN OUTRAGEOUS MARRIAGE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of sixteen and going to high school. I made the acquaintance of an elderly gentleman about sixty who has a daughter much older than myself and his wife. He likes me very much and has asked me to marry him. I like him, too, and, as he is very wealthy, I think it would be very well to marry him as it would also better conditions at home. I have not had any consultation with my parents as yet about this fact, so I surely would appreciate your advice first. SWEET SIXTEEN.

THE marriage you are contemplating is against nature. Sixty and sixteen are two generations apart and not meant to mate. My dear child, you must not sacrifice your youth to "better conditions at home." Wait for love and the happiness the years will bring you.

FORGET HER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been paying attention to a girl for nearly two years and love her dearly. I think she cares for me, too, because she sat with me one day and one night when I was sick, and right after that she gave me an expensive Christmas present. She went away and promised to write to me once every week, but I received but one letter the whole time she was away. I answered four times, thinking that I made a mistake in the address, but received no answer. She came home two weeks ago, and when I telephoned to her brother I learned that she was going out with a man about five years her senior. She once told me she'd never love any one but me.

HAROLD R. W.

THE girl has shown clearly that she no longer cares for you. Her present feelings have far more weight than an outworn promise to care for you only. Her affection isn't worth having. Don't grieve over its loss.

RECIPE TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

By a Specialist.

A very satisfactory preparation which darkens gray hair and acts as a corrective agent for dandruff and other diseases of the scalp can be made at small expense and in your own home by dissolving a small box of Barbo Compound in 7 ounces of water and then adding an ounce of bay rum and a quarter ounce of glycerine. Any drug store can furnish these ingredients. This is to be applied once a week until the hair is sufficiently darkened, then every two weeks to keep the hair soft and glossy and the scalp in a healthy condition. It may be used with equal success in darkening the beard. This is a preparation that gives splendid results, both as a hair darkener and a remedy for all scalp disorders, and is well worthy of a trial. You will find it far superior to the ordinary store preparations and much less expensive. —ADVERTISEMENT.

MRS. GREW WINS IN SERVANTS' SUIT

Miss Nellie M. Doane, the servant who sued a former employer on a charge of slander, claiming that false statements when requested to give references prevented her from getting another position, must bring suit again, proving malice, to recover damages, according to the decision of the full bench of the Supreme Court.

The employer, Mrs. Ethel Hooper Grew, lost the case in the superior court, and was ordered to pay $500 damages. An appeal was made from this decision on the ground that the lower court ruling to the jury that the defendant must bear the burden of proof in her contention that the "reference" was a privileged occasion was in error. The Supreme Court rules now that if the occasion was privileged, the burden of proof to show malice is on the plaintiff.

Thaw Off to Concord Soon

Bids Gym Class Good-bye

Unusual photograph of Tarry K. Thaw, showing him on final visit to Manchester Y. M. C. A. gym taking setting up exercises to music with business men's class.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 21.—Harry K. Thaw will be taken to Concord tomorrow by High Sheriff Holman A. Drew of Coos county. He will be brought before Judge Edgar Aldrich in the United States District Court and the preliminaries to his extradition will be attended to, after which he will be rushed to New York City and placed in the Tombs to await trial on the conspiracy indictment returned in connection with his escape from Matteawan on August 17, 1913.

Clerk Burns Hodgman of the Federal Court at Concord said today:

"Under the law it will be necessary to produce Thaw in court, but the proceedings will not last more than two minutes. I don't think Mr. Jerome will get the mandate of the United States Supreme Court before this afternoon. That would give Mr. Jerome and his deputies time to be here on Friday, but something might possibly delay the court session until Saturday."

SANE, SAYS SHERIFF.

"Mr. Thaw will be produced in court by Sheriff Drew. Judge Aldrich will formally set aside the decision granting a habeas corpus writ, the ruling of the United States Supreme Court will be entered in the records. Judge Aldrich will order that the extradition papers signed by former Governor Felker be executed and Thaw will be surrendered to the custody of the State authorities of New Hampshire. He will then be surrendered to William Travers Jerome or his agents and taken to New York."

Sheriff Holman Drew, Thaw's bodyguard, said today:

"I believe Thaw to be perfectly sane. If I were to be asked today, after having been in close touch with him for nearly a year and a half, I should be obliged to say I believe him sane."

SAYS GOOD-BYE AT GYM.

Harry Thaw's last hour in the gym of the Manchester Y. M. C. A. was dramatic. For weeks he has exercised with members in what is known as the business men's class.

A running track forms the balcony and there is an inclosure for visitors. Sheriff Drew sat up there with his mighty cane, his eyes constantly on the lithe figure of the fugitive. First the class played medicine ball in teams and Harry's side won. He played near the net most of the time and was as spry as a "prep" school athlete.

Then the class was strung in fours, the length of the gym, and the drill began. Thaw was No. 1 man in the fifth four. They swung arms and legs and bent backward and forward and sidewise. They got on their knees, laid on their stomachs, and on their backs and squatted and imitated a carpenter. They swung dumb bells to the notes of a piano and the orders of Physical Culture Director William E. Jackson. At the close of the drill Thaw took a cold shower and ribdowned and held a hearty farewell reception.

George H. Arthur, who conducts a mailing bureau here, today began issuing thousands of circulars in connection with the publicity campaign being waged by Thaw. The circulars are in the form of miniature newspapers with a layout on the front page showing a picture of Evelyn Nesbit, the Madison Square Roof Garden, where Thaw shot Stanford White on the night of June 25, 1906, and the figure of a male figure in a dress suit, with one foot perched on a globe, shooting with bow and arrow, and labelled "Diana."

This illustration accompanies a history of the case written by Alfred Henry Lewis and entitled "In Her Sixteenth Year Cupid Evelyn Nesbit—The Thaw Case," the text of which covers the whole front page with a sub-line, "White flashed the black-handled revolver." At the top of the page in this line: "Is your paper for or against Jerome" Harry Thaw will appreciate any reader's opinion—address Box 1, Manchester, N. H."

To Keep Your Skin Free From Hairs

(Beauty Topics)

If you are willing to spend a few minutes' time in your room using a delatone paste, you can easily banish any ugly, hairy growth without discomfort or injury. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This is then spread over the hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rubbed off and the skin washed. You will not be disappointed with this treatment, providing you get real delatone.

What Cadum Is Made Of

Cadum, the well-known remedy for Eczema and other skin troubles, is one of the very few preparations sold in drug stores that is not secret. A list of its ingredients is printed upon every box. One ingredient is oil of cade, which is recommended by doctors as being one of the best things known for healing sores. Another ingredient is zinc oxide, which girles on the water that forms upon sore places on the skin. Two other ingredients are petrolatum and white wax, which make a covering to protect these sore parts from the air and water. A trial box of Cadum can be secured in any drug store for 10c, but it is cheaper to buy the 25c size, as it contains nearly four times as much as the 10c box.

HEARD BRYAN WAS GRAFT PARTNER

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Former Governor Martin H. Glynn today denied the statement made by a witness at the inquiry into the affairs of James H. Sullivan, American Minister to the Dominican Republic, that he was interested in the affairs of the republic.

William C. Beer, attorney for the Banco National of Santo Domingo, which has been accused of attempting to exploit public contracts, was quoted as having said he expected to share his profits with Secretary of State Bryan, Mr. Glynn, and Congressman James A. Hamill of New Jersey.

M. E. Davis of New York, a contractor, testified he had been informed by Beer, "The witness was not at the time he had taken Beer's statement seriously, but during the hearings admitted a change of belief.

That Minister Sullivan had encouraged the Dominican government to bombard the city at Puerto Plata during a revolution in October, 1912, in spite of the fact that it would endanger American property here, was charged in testimony by J. O. Baker. It was charged Minister Sullivan wrote:

"This does not mean that the attack on the town will be stopped by the United States; on the contrary, we will encourage it."

A copy of the letter, the witness said, was sent to Secretary Bryan. The gunboat subsequently did bombard, he testified.

PETITION PLEADS FOR 'DAKOTA DAN'

Several hundred signatures have been secured by Malvern to a petition asking the reprieving of Dr. Russell will be the subject of early consideration by the governor. The petition favoring "Dakota Dan" Russell is the last to be filed in the case, it was said.

Henry A. Leonard, of No. 403 Lexington street, Melrose, an old friend of the elder William Russell, said today:

"I never knew my life that 'Dakota Dan' Russell killed Blake Russell. Dakota Dan has certainly compromised to the limit. He's extended that limit three times when the case was ready to close, so far as being concerned, that even Harry Thaw could not have had more time to himself and his friends. Dakota Dan's record there on him. My daughter and myself, as well as a host of others, will remember to the end. ANSWERS TO BEAUTY QUESTIONS

By CLAIRE AINSWORTH,

The Notedly Beautiful Singer.

Bea B. asks: "I am getting more flesh day by day and have resolved to take treatment to reduce. Please tell me of a safe, harmless and effective remedy."

Answer: Get from a well-stocked pharmacy fluegrain phytolyn tablets and take according to directions in sealed tube. This formula is prescribed widely by physicians, and one whom I personally know says it is harmless and very effective.

Mrs. P. R. asks: "I would give anything I possess to find something to overcome my sensory arms, hands, neck and bust. What am I to do?"

Answer: First, take a good tonic and flesh builder, and for this I know of nothing better than Ir-ron hemo-nutrient tablets, sold by most pharmacists. Then the parts should daily be supplied with a nourishing skin food, and for this you should obtain, in sealed tube, medicated venoid, which is specially used by actresses and society women to develop the bust, arms and neck. Full directions are given with the article, and rapid development is certain to follow its use.

A. C. B. asks: "Can you recommend a remedy to make the hair fluffy, wavy and curling?"

Answer: Have you ever tried glorio wave lotion? It is a delightful hairdressing, dyefree detection and makes the hair curl and wave beautifully. One application will keep the hair in curl for a week or more, and many assert that after it has been used repeatedly the hair assumes a natural wave and curl.

Martha S. asks: "Will you please tell me of a good, reliable and harmless hair tonic?"

Answer: I always use Hay's hair-health myself when possible, because I know their value by experience. I put ½ oz. bayrand powdered and dissolve it in a pint of pure soft water. It is apparently a natural hair and scalp remedy, superior to every way, because it is free from alcohol, which I consider harmful to the hair and scalp. Rub into the scalp with the fingers.

Miss P. L.: You ask for a fragrant, pure, lasting face powder. For a 2-cent stamp I will order sent to you a sample of pink, white or brunette.

Vera M.: An oily, shiny skin when going to dances is indeed deplorable, and you will rejoice to know that daily applications of glorid lemon astringent corrects such conditions. Many use it just before going to receptions and entertainments. It is the best thing, too, for pimples and flabby cheeks, chin and neck.

NOTE: If the reader does not find the information wanted in the questions answered above, just address a letter to Miss Claire Ainsworth, 40 Patterson Bldg., Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope, and she will gladly advise on health and beauty problems. The articles and preparations mentioned are on sale by all wholesale druggists, large retail and department stores, or any accommodating dealer can obtain them for you. $137.50 Hudson Seal Coat, $89.50

Sketch 1 shows a $62.50 Black Fox Set, double animal scarf and plain or fancy muff, here at $37.50.

Sketch 2 shows a $37.50 Muff of Natural Skunk, here at $19.75.

Sketch 3 and 4 show handsome coats of Hudson Seal (dyed muskrat), a $137.50 coat with skunk collar, here at $89.50, and a $100 coat, here at $62.50.

Below are a score or more other examples. You will note that we are concentrating our energies on the medium-priced and less expensive furs of the staple kind. Because of the staple character of these furs and because of the demand for them, they are much more difficult to get for less than value than are the novelty furs.

We lay much stress on the word "wanted" because at this time of the year so many furriers, wholesale and retail, are disposing of their novelty, extreme and other least desirable furs at special prices.

In securing these wanted furs Hudson seal, black fox, raccoon, etc. at one-third to one-half below early season prices, we believe we have served our friends much better than we could by taking over any furriers' surplus. Such surplus stocks are naturally made up largely of furs for which there has been least demand. Such furs may always be had underpriced.

But the items above and the items below describe just the staple, serviceable furs that our customers are asking for and buying freely.

They are both the kind and the grade of furs that most people want.

These furs are here at one-third to one-half less than our own low earlier prices on similar furs. The values are NOT exaggerated to make the present prices seem lower.

CURLEY TO PROBE PENSIONS TO DEAD

Mayor Curley will tomorrow appoint a constable to investigate every person drawing a pension from the city of Boston to ascertain if beneficiaries of dead pensioners are drawing funds illegally.

Retired school teachers, laborers, firemen and policemen draw the greater portion of the $450,000 paid annually by the city of Boston, and these cases will be investigated first.

The Mayor suspects that a fairly large number of dead men are being carried on the list, to the benefit of the dead men's families but to the detriment of the city's finances.

"The system, as it exists in Boston, is one of the most startling examples of lack of efficiency I ever heard of," declares the Mayor.

"There is no check list maintained and a police official who had been dead ten years might have been drawing as a dead man his pension money all that time through a power of attorney document that continued active while he was in his grave.

"While I was in Washington, there was a Federal investigation into pension conditions not half so loosely conducted and over 5 per cent. of the annual payments were to dead men no longer entitled to the money.

"If Boston has this percentage it means an annual illegal leak in the city treasury of upwards of $25,000. And there is no reason why such conditions should exist. So long as it is known that a dead man's pension can continue to be drawn by a document used while he was living outside the city, the city will be robbed."

Urges Federal Law Upon Child Labor

Urging the Legislative Committee on Federal Relations to memorialize Congress for the passage of a national child-labor law, Representative Ernest P. Davis of Brockton said today that Massachusetts industries are suffering in competition with other States where the child-labor laws are less drastic.

To Arrest Mailmen Who Block Streets

Captain James P. Sullivan of the Court square station has notified drivers of mail wagons that unless they stop blocking the streets in backing up to ramps in the Federal Building there will be arrests. Should one be made the police could be charged with obstructing the mails, in the view of some.

Everett Girl, 10, Injured by Auto

GRADY ANSWERS FIRE CRITICISM

Fire Commissioner John Grady today sent to the press a copy of a letter he has sent to the editor of a Boston paper which has criticised him editorially. He says, in part:

I do not know who inspired these attacks upon the fire department, but I suspect that certain fire apparatus concerns which long had a monopoly of the business, are taking this method of showing disappointment.

I think the fire department ought to be shown up at once when it is wrong, but I think an important newspaper should first take pains to find out the facts before giving anything to shake the confidence of the community in the efficiency of the department.

I have been connected with the Boston Fire Department forty years, and have advanced from the ranks to my present position.

I never received promotion through political influence and every one knows that every advance that I have made has been due to the work I have performed for the department. I know fewer politicians than any man in public life in Boston.

My appointment as Fire Commissioner was not a political appointment. The Mayor of Boston owned nothing to me and I owe nothing to him. He has not asked me to take any action with respect to the department to promote his political fortunes. He has given me a free hand in the conduct of the department without any regard whatever to politicians.

Badly Burned in Devonshire St. Fire

Thomas Canfield of No. 663 Parker street, Roxbury, was filling a gasoline lamp today in the Unity Building, now under construction at 155 Devonshire street, when the lamp exploded. Canfield was in what is known as a plasterers' locker, a temporary room built on one of the floors, and the locker became a mass of flame in an instant. Two other lamps exploded and the seven plasterers at work on the building lost all their clothes and valuable tools. Canfield was badly burned. He was treated by Bremer and then sent to the Relief Hospital.

Countess Aids Heroes Pleads for the French

Countess Dumas, in Boston on mission of mercy.

Kinswoman of Lafayette Lauds America's Work for European Sufferers.

Countess Dumas, whose husband is grandson of Count Alexander Dumas, who came to this country with Lafayette during the American Revolution, is now in Boston in behalf of the French soldiers at the front.

The Countess is an attractive woman and made a strong impression in her address before the New England Woman's Press Association at their meeting in Hotel Somerset.

She came here from Washington where she has organized a society to collect garments, especially underclothing, to be sent to the French soldiers.

"I really don't know what would have become of Europe if America had not stepped in and helped," said the Countess. "I cannot begin to tell how thankful we are in France to feel there is a country over here we can call our friend.

"Never were our people so close to America. They think of her just as a boy thinks of his mother and goes to her for help and comfort.

"You have no idea what a comfort it is to be able to sit in a Boston hotel and not hear the tramp of the soldiers on the pavements. It is good to be in America and especially in Boston.

"I want to send underclothing to the soldiers at the front. You have no idea of the needs of these soldiers. Many of them, when wounded, have been forced to use absorbent cotton that has been used several times before.

"I hope to send every French soldier some chocolate. It is easily carried and very sustaining. The soldiers like it, too."

The Countess will be a guest at the Woman's City Club today and next week will start for California, where she hopes to confer at Point Loma with Mrs. Katherine Tingley on the Peace Parliament.

WOMAN RE-OPENS LYNCH WILL WAR

The $400,000 estate of Eugene Lynch and his wife, who died when the liners Republic and Florida collided in 1909, is again in dispute, following attachments of $100,000 served upon former Assistant Federal District Attorney John H. Casey and Michael H. Carley. They were executors of the will of Lynch, the bulk of whose estate went to the wife and family of Attorney James P. Magenis.

The litigation is brought by Mary A. Macnie as principal legatee under the will, and by Thomas C. Officer, member of the Parole Board, who has been appointed "administrator of the will annexed," replacing the executors.

The latter withdrew when, after a series of judicial hearings, the will was compromised. It is said Casey and Carley received over $40,000 when their consent was gained to a compromise of the will.

Dorchester Man Has Message from Front

Thomas Flanagan of No. 17 Charles street, Dorchester, today got a letter from his brother Joseph, who is serving in the war zone with the Royal Irish Fusiliers. Joseph forwarded to Thomas the Christmas card sent to him, like that received by all other British soldiers in France, by King George and Queen Mary. On the card is printed, with the royal signatures, "Best Wishes, Christmas, 1914. May God Protect You and Bring You Home Safe." Writing paper is evidently scarce with the ollies. With the card came a scrap of cardboard, evidently torn from the cover of a shoe box, on which was pencilled by Joseph: "I am safe and well."

O'MEARA FENWAY CLAIM REFUTED

Mrs. Mary Adams Abbott of Concord, who started the crusade for better police protection for young women students in the Fenway district, today replied to Police Commissioner O'Meara's statement that complaints of indignities to women in that section were absurd or unfounded.

Mrs. Abbott declared she has first hand information of one case where a girl student was insulted and adds that it is common knowledge that young women are being constantly annoyed by men in the Fenway and have no redress.

She not only repeated her demand for better policing of the district, but declared she had understood the police commissioner admitted the police force was inadequate.

O'MEARA'S STATEMENT.

Commissioner O'Meara's statement was the first public utterance from him on the question and came in a letter to Mayor Curley in answer to a letter in which the Mayor urged immediate relief in the Fenway. Despite the commissioner's claim that the Fenway has had "but one police crime in a year," the Simmons College authorities have ordered that the library closed at 4:30 p. m. every day, so that the girl students will not be obliged to cross the Fenway after dark.

Mrs. Abbott said:

"I know of one clear case of insult. This happened last Fall and the young woman insulted was a near relative of mine. As far as I am able to gather there have been many such instances. I do not know them at first hand, but I do not see how their truth can be doubted.

"My action in this matter followed this one instance in which a near relative was insulted. I have not personally investigated the case of this relative. This relative has been going about Boston unattended and was never insulted. But she entered the Art Museum school, going to live at the Stewart Club in the Fenway.

INSULTED BY ARTOISTS.

"One day two men stopped their auto, got out and asked her to take a ride with them. She at once reported the insult to me. This happened in the Fenway.

"It is only fair to suppose that there is some girl or girls who have been insulted to such a ride such as my daughter indignantly refused. For instance we can imagine a girl who perhaps comes from a country town, who has not yet left her day's studies, who hasn't had opportunity for diversions in a city. Suppose this girl takes these rides; two glasses of champagne would be enough, and it would not take very long to do it.

"I have not exaggerated any of the menace to the girls who have lack of proper police protection in the Fenway. The commissioner says that he has been told crimes are kept out in a year. Perhaps not crimes, as set forth in the law, but surely we are not going to permit out girls to be made to face continual insult even if it isn't classified as 'real crime.'"

RECIPE TO CLEAR A PIMPLY SKIN

Pimples are Impurities Seeking an Outlet Through Skin Pores.

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from taking poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate, then the blood seeks the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of hot water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys to normal activity, thus causing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually makes pimples disappear; cleanses the blood and is excellent for the kidneys as well.—Advertisement.

RELAY MEN DODGE HOLY CROSS TEAM

The management of Coast Artillery Corps meet, which is to be held Saturday night, is still trying to find a suitable opponent for the Holy Cross relay team. Both Brown and Worcester Tech have refused to run the speedy Purple team. The manager of the Holy Cross aggregation has offered to run any college four in the vicinity, but most of them are sidestepping the Worcester team.

As a result of the trials which were held at Worcester the men that will oppose the Worcester aggregation are: Kelley as lead-off man, with Dunphy, Higgins and Captain Lee following in the order named.

The freshman team, which will be composed of Reilly, Burke, O'Neil, all Greater Boston boys, and McCarthy of Springfield, expects to give to the Dartmouth youngsters the race of their lives when they meet Saturday night.

The committee in charge of the C. A. C. meet this year have had the temporary bleachers, which proved so popular last year, erected so that everyone holding a reserved seat ticket will have a good seat.

Another good feature of the work of the committee is the building of a pen for the athletes. Heretofore the enclosure has been filled with athletes and officials, and many protests were made by the people that they could not see what was going on at the side of the track.

This year there will be no officials allowed on the track other than the ones who are to compete in the coming event. When the athlete has finished competing in his event he must leave the track instead of sitting on the floor inside the track, as has been done in the past.

This year a pen will be built for the men behind one of the corners, and everyone running in the meet will be obliged to remain there until his event. At that time the assistant clerk of course will call out the men for that race.

The list of officials has also been greatly reduced, and this will serve to relieve the congestion in the middle of the track.

B. C. Relay Team Not Named Yet

Coach "Tom" Connors and Captain "Harry" Bowen of the Boston College track squad are having a hard time trying to get a fast four into shape for the relay race with Rhode Island State at the Coast Artillery meet next Saturday night. There is much speculation as to the men that will be picked for the race.

"Jim" Duffy, the football star, looks like a winner of a place. Captain Bowen and Leo McGovern, captain of last year's fast quartette, will most likely oppose the Rhode Islanders. One of a dozen may be the choice for the other position. Trials will be held tomorrow to decide the makeup of the team.

Rush Takes Charge of Tiger Eleven April 1

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 21.—John Harland Rush, Princeton 1898, will assume charge of his new position at Princeton University, April 1. Rush is to have full charge of the football and track candidates. Among the men developed by Rush at University Prep School are Alcott, Yale all-American end; George Cook, Cornell, captain of team and tackle two years; Weatherhead of Harvard; Charley Barrett of Cornell and Frank Burrett, University of Pittsburgh; Quarterbacks Scovil of Yale, Kassauliker of Chicago, all-Western end, and many others.

Cornell Not Anxious to Cut Race Course

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 21.—The Cornell Athletic Association does not propose to press the question of reducing the four-mile course to foster keeping is a conclusion this year. While the Cornell faculty, Coach Charles E. Courtney and the other authorities of the University of Pittsburgh greatly in favor of cutting down the Poughkeepsie course the chances are that no strenuous efforts to produce this result will be made.

CITY LEAGUE PIN MEN OFF FORM

THE poorest bowling of the season was furnished to the followers of the City League last night.

All of the teams fell down to unexpectedly low scores, and but few individuals hit the pins for total scores better than 300.

* * *

The Hanover Street rollers hit the pins for the highest team total of the night, 1,497.

THE champion Chauncy team, with Walsh and Poehler in the lineup, also was in a bad slump, but managed to win three points from Dave Grove's Casinos. Chauncy got a team total of 1,490, the best the team has rolled for a long time. Poehler was a sick man and his low scores showed it. Murray and Boylston split four points.

CAREY and McLean of the Casino team of the City League have accepted the challenge of "Bo" Hartford and Jimmy Mahoney for a twenty-string match and these bowlers will probably clash on Thursday or Friday nights, February 1 and February 8. Ten strings will be rolled on the Casino alleys and ten at the Arch street alleys.

FRED Woodcock, director of the Harvard and former pitcher and Brown University baseball coach, is also some pumpkins as a bowling instructor as is evidenced by the performances of the Cottage Park quintet in the Amateur Basket Ball League. SECOND WEEK'S BOWLING TOURNEY ENDS TONIGHT

ENTRIES SHOW INCREASE IN WOMEN'S SCORES

HUNDREDS ENROLL IN ALLEY CONTEST

Today's your last chance to get in on this week's great AMERICAN bowling contest. At midnight tonight, the second week of the biggest bowling competition Boston has ever known comes to its end.

Hundreds of entries have come in. Every mail is bringing more. The contest has greater Boston by the ears, as you might say.

There are some good scores in, too. Whether or not they are better than last week's might be interesting. But it will remain a mystery. The Sunday AMERICAN will tell you that.

If you have made any good scores in the past week send them in. You may be surprised and get in the roll-off a week from Saturday. There's nothing like trying.

And here are a few things that entrants in the second week's tourney should paste in their hats:

All entries must be in the hands of the contest editor by noon Saturday.

And three consecutive strings rolled anywhere in Greater Boston, between midnight last Thursday and midnight tonight qualify the roller.

If a bowler is not enrolled, the blank with witnesses' names is all that need be sent in.

If a bowler is not enrolled, the additional coupon must accompany the score blank.

The first week's roll-off, with the ten high men competing will be held at the Littlefield Alleys, Franklin street, Saturday night.

One string only will be rolled and the prizes awarded accordingly.

In case of a tie, the bowlers concerned will roll an extra string.

There will be no admission charged. It will be a case of first come first served.

It might be well, too, to mention that the women bowlers are getting into the contest in bevies, which is the proper finishing way, it seems, to specify great numbers.

From the scores it is evident that there are a great many very proficient lady bowlers in this neck of the woods. The fact that no roll-off will be necessary is helping matters along likewise. The women like to bowl, but the lines of them haven't been educated yet to settling supremacy among themselves.

If the rate of improvement in bowling can be used to judge by, however, we'll soon be having their tourneys and their rolloffs.

Be that as it may, there are many more women bowlers in the lists than was the case a week ago. And the general run average are somewhat better than was the case in the opening contest.

The following prizes will be awarded each week:

First Prize	$20.00
Second Prize	10.00
Third Prize	5.00
special Woman's Prize	5.00

The prizes will consist of merchandise. You can have anything you want at any store you choose to the value of the prize won and the Boston AMERICAN will pay the bill. The merchandise prizes are given to protect you against becoming professionals.

SHEPPARD TO RUN AT B. A. A. GAMES

Melvin W. Sheppard, the "Peerless One," is still in active competition and will probably run in the big B. A. A. track meet here next month.

This famous middle-distance runner, in spite of the fact that he was pronounced a victim of heart trouble several years ago, is known all over the world for his marvelous work on the track in this country and abroad. He has shattered record after record and won race after race through perfect headwork and lightning-like finishes.

Today Sheppard is probably not the runner he was, but he refuses to believe this and hopes to prove himself right during the games at the Pan-American Exposition next Summer. He is now a member of the Millrose Athletic Club of New York, and coaches the club's runners. He trains hard daily and believes himself to be as good as ever.

GIBBONS-CLABBY IN GO TONIGHT

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 21.—Jimmy Clabby and Mike Gibbons are ready for their much discussed ten-round ring bout, which will be staged here tonight. The contest has aroused an intense amount of interest and a record-breaking crowd is expected to turn out to witness the festivities. The gate will probably be close to $30,000.

The rival boxers are both confident of the outcome of the tussle. They have trained faithfully for the whir and neither of them will be able to offer an alibi if defeated.

Clabby ruled a 10 to 9 favorite in the betting today. It is believed, however, that betting will be at even money by the time that the men enter the ring this evening.

Jimmy Clabby's father arrived in town from Hammond, Ind., today with a bank roll of $1,000, which he was anxious to bet on his boy's chances of winning. This sum was raised by the citizens of Hammond. No referee's decisions are allowed here and as a result the bettors are relying on the verdicts of the various sporting experts.

CLAIMS PLAYERS ARE OPPRESSED

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—The Federal League suit against organized baseball will be resumed here today, Keene Addington, chief attorney for the Federal League, who charged that the powers that control organized baseball are oppressors of minor leagues and ball players, will continue his argument on the opening of court.

Addington attacked the National Agreement in unmeasured terms and declared the agreement was clearly for the benefit of the two major leagues to the detriment of the minor bodies.

"The forces of organized baseball use this agreement," the attorney declared, "as a mighty weapon for clubbing all threatened opposition into line. They go as far as to use the blacklist. They also use the term 'outlaw' in classifying a man who does not do what they say, and call a man a 'contract jumper' who does them and goes elsewhere to ply his vocation."

Addington devoted a large portion of his address to an attack on the waiver and draft rules and practices. He declared the former vested control of the player not alone in the club he served, but also in other clubs.

Addington charged that the waiver method is used as a means of humiliating or disciplining a player and then brought in the charge, made in an affidavit by Mordecai Brown, that when President Murphy of the Chicago Nationals sold him to Louisville, it was with the agreement that he never would be allowed again to join the majors.

Here Attorney George W. Miller, for the defendants, called Addington's attention to the fact that Brown later played with the Cincinnati club, in a major league, but Addington said the agreement between Chicago and Louisville was what he wished to show was possible.

Changes in the players' contract, which were made last year at the behest of the Players' Fraternity, were declared by Addington not to have modified it materially.

DARTMOUTH ON ROAD TO TITLE

Dartmouth is now well down the road that leads to the highest honors in Intercollegiate hockey after its four to two victory over Harvard and but one obstacle remains in its path to the title of champion. The obstacle is Yale and the wearers of the Blue are to be taken on at New Haven on February 5.

Tom Howard, the Yale coach, is credited with having a team far removed from the class displayed by Harvard and Dartmouth, and, unless the Elis brace, the Hocque coached machine will brush them aside with impunity.

The present Dartmouth seven, which has defeated Princeton also, is entirely made up of New England boys with but two chaps who claim a state other than Massachusetts as their home.

"Art" Donahue, easily the foremost goal tender among the college boys this Winter, and Carl Holmes, the speedy right wing, are Somerville lads. "Hobey" Baker's only approachable rival, Clarence Wanamaker, the rover, is Melrose's proud quantity on the septet and whirlwind Leon Tuck is reported from up Winchester way.

George Currier, the coverpoint, although a sophomore and somewhat new at the game, is already showing promise of developing into a star. Ralph Taylor, right wing, is a product of Marblehead, and his understudy, Irving Gale, who started the Harvard game, hails from Marblehead. Harris F. Marchie, the plucky covers, taps Calais, Maine, as his home.

Coach Fred Rocque is praying for cold weather until the contest with Yale so that he can bring his team to New Haven working at the zenith of its power.

Medford High Hands Another Surprise

The Medford High School hockey team came to bat with another surprise by defeating Newton High at the Arena, 6 to 0. It was Medford's second victory of the week in the Interscholastic League, the first one being over Arlington High on Monday.

THE MELROSE HIGH HOCKEY TEAM added another win to its long string when it defeated Malden High, 6 to 0, on Mt. Pond, Melrose.

Yale Authorities Are on Lookout for the Athletic Heart

Yale athletic authorities are on the lookout for the athletic heart, and have established Dr. Billy Bull as head physician in charge of the examination of all major and freshman major sport teams.

Dr. Bull will start work shortly examining the men under his charge, but is at present undecided as to the best way to reach the men and arrange appointments for them. He will keep a card index of a most thorough character containing the names, statistics, and past and present records of all the men trying out for any of the teams under his supervision.

Waitresses Wear Baseball Suits

WORCESTER, Jan. 21.—Waitresses togged out in the uniforms of Jess Burkett's New England League "Busters" served the food at a banquet of the local telephone operators' baseball team. Among the guests were Burkett, Paul McHale and John J. O'Donnell, owners of the "Busters."

Manchester May Be in 'Feds' N. E. Circuit

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 21.—Manchester may land a club in the proposed New England circuit of the Federal League, it has been learned here.

Negotiations are said to be under way for the use of Textile field, now used by the New England League, and local manufacturers' league organizations.

Hollenback Resigns As Penn State Coach

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 20.—"Bill" Hollenback, the former University of Pennsylvania football star, announced today that he had resigned as head coach of the Pennsylvania State football team. It is understood that he will be backfield coach at Pennsylvania this Fall. Dick Harlow, who has been assistant coach at State, displaced Hollenback.

In the twenty-third game of the B class amateur billiard tournament at the Elite, Edwards defeated Goodwin, 200 to 168. Tonight Barry will meet Percival.

"The Rabbit's" Column By Walter J. Maranville "HORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

The management of the Braves has arranged a very good schedule for the return trip from training quarters. Manager Stallings does not believe in too much barnstorming. When he gets his team in condition he likes to have a few hard fought games with other clubs, but that is all. He does not like the idea of splitting his team in two and sending the players out on "one night stands."

* * *

The Braves' exhibition schedule for 1915 is nicely arranged. After playing two games at Atlants on March 28 and 27, the Braves go back to Macon to finish up training. Early in April we return to Atlanta for one more game and then begin our journey North.

* * *

The game at Durham, N. C., was arranged to give the citizens of that town a chance to see George Whitted in action on a big league team. Durham is Whitted's home town. I suppose he will see to it that all the players are handed enough smoking tobacco to last the season.

* * *

From Durham we go to Richmond, where we played in 1913, but skipped last Spring. Jack Dunn's International League team will be our opponents there, the Baltimore franchise having been transferred to Richmond. They have small, but very attractive, ball grounds in Richmond and the boys will doubtless enjoy the day spent there.

* * *

Washington is the next stop, and there we line up against Clarke Griffith's team for three games. In the last two years we have only played two games at Washington, but as the Senators always give us good practice, Stallings and Griffith have added another game to the usual schedule.

* * *

After the Washington series comes a Sunday game at Bridgeport, and then games with Harvard and Brown at Fenway park, and then we start the real business of trying to win another National League pennant.

* * *

It will be noticed that our games in the South this year are limited to three cities—Atlanta, Durham and Richmond. In years gone by the big league clubs drew well in the South, but that time has passed. The fans of the Southern cities are not interested very much in big league stars.

I can't understand this myself. Seems to me if I had been reading about the great players for a number of years and then great players came to my town I would go out to see them. But the Southern gentlemen don't do so any more. They seem to prefer to wait until their own team starts its regular championship season.

Braves to Play at Fenway Next Season

It now appears quite likely that the Braves will play all their home games next season at Fenway Park. It is not believed that the new Allston park will be finished in time, as President Gaffney will insist on a thorough job and this takes time. A flag pole will be placed at Fenway Park, from which the Braves will float the National League and world's championship pennants.

"Bob" Storer, captain of the Harvard varsity football team of two years ago, has been practically engaged to coach the Bowdoin College eleven next Fall.

"Hobey" Baker Star of St. Nick's Win

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The sterling work of "Hobey" Baker gave the St. Nicholas seven a 2 to 0 victory over the Hockey Club.

The first goal, scored by Fox, in ten seconds, was made possible by the wonderful speed of Baker.

Again, in the second period, it was the peerless "Hobey" who rode roughshod over the Hockey Club team, and scored a brilliant goal unaided.

ADAMS CLEARED OF 'PRO' CHARGES

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Platt Adams, Olympic champion in the standing high jump, has been fully exonerated of charges of professionalism in an announcement by the registration committee of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, which has been considering his case for several days. Adams, who is a member of the New York Athletic Club, was charged with disposing of, for a consideration, trophies which he had won.

Several hearings were held at which witnesses against Adams succeeded that they had no positive knowledge that he had ever sold a prize.

Princeton Football Dates Announced

WORK TO ASSIST THE UNEMPLOYED

Spurred to action by the insistent demands of Governor Walsh, the legislative Committee on Agriculture will today report a definite plan for immediate relief for the unemployed.

The committee will report to the Legislature a resolve providing for the immediate expenditure of at least $25,000, and possibly $50,000. Several hundred men will be put at work as soon as possible reclaiming wet lands in the Bridgewaters. And they will be paid a "living wage." First call will be given to citizens of the State, and preference will be given to the unemployed.

Surveys of the work that can be undertaken were already completed by the State Board of Agriculture. A fund of $25,000 is available and this fund will be transferred from the Agricultural Department to a new State commission that will have immediate charge of the work. The State will do the work and contract labor will not prevail.

In the plan formulated by Governor Walsh at a conference with several members of the Legislature, it is intended to organize a new, unpaid commission of State officials. The forestry, health and agricultural departments will be represented on the commission.

Camps will be established at the scene of the work, where the men may live. Sanitary conditions will be supervised by the Health Department of the State. The principal work will be of filling and grading, which will allow the employment of both skilled and unskilled labor.

While Governor Walsh has viewed the situation from an humanitarian viewpoint with the purpose of giving relief to the suffering people of the State, it is said that the work of reclamation will increase the value of the land from $5 to possibly $200 an acre. As soon as this land is properly reclaimed, it is said that market gardeners and dairy farmers will be glad to establish their business upon it in order to get their product near the metropolitan district.

'DRIVE BUSINESS,' COUNSELS FORBES

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—If you don't drive your business you will be driven out of business.

The man who stands still is passed by the procession.

The ladder of success has to be climbed. It is not a moving stairway that you can simply step on to and wait, with idle feet and folded hands, until you are carried to the top.

Great changes are pending in the world's business currents.

There will be unprecedented opportunities in many lines.

Some men and firms will become rich. Others will be left stranded.

The prize is to be for the alert, for the enterprising, for the far-sighted, for the energetic, for those quick to adapt themselves and their organizations to new and changing conditions.

Dry rot kills more concerns than any other dozen causes.

BAD CEASED PUSHING.

In Wall Street the mortality has been heaviest during recent years among houses that once were numbered among the most select, but whose partners, having become rich and lazy, let things drift and drift until shutters had to be hoisted.

They had ceased to drive their business.

On the other hand, quite a few young firms, composed of clean-cut, ambitious, pushing partners, possessing nothing but their bank accounts, have forged to the front.

Hard work has won. Indifference has lost.

The greatest "hustlers," you must have noticed, have little time for whining over "hard times" or any other species of misfortune. They are too busy going after business to squander hours or moments in idle, purposeless, mental wailing.

The idler is even the worst complainer—and usually with reason, for he who works is apt to find abundant occasion for feeling ill at ease with himself and with the world.

I have been led to make these somewhat commonplace observations by receipt of a stirring communication from an able, progressive Stock Exchange broker, who states he received inspiration for his contribution from the article on "Wall Street," first published in this column and since reproduced in various publications and in many languages.

I cannot do better than present the contribution exactly as written. Here it is:

TO THE WALL STREET BROKER.

Is your business dull?

Are you complaining of the dullness?

Are you doing anything EXCEPT complain?

Are you doing anything to increase your business?

Are you really WORKING?

Do you get down to business at 9 o'clock or at 10 o'clock?

Do you leave business at 3 o'clock or 5 o'clock?

Do you spend the time between in bewailing the loss of old customers or in planning to get them back and new customers besides?

Are you so accustomed to have business volunteered that you don't know how to solicit it?

As a specialist in investments would you recommend the securities of any company whose management was not unwilling to spend money in developments as you are?

Are you afraid of publicity, or do you recognize it as the most valuable ally of a legitimate business?

ARE YOU A CROUPIER?

Is YOUR particular business legitimate? Are you a croupier or are you being paid for performing a useful, constructive function?

Have you sufficient backbone to express a firm, conscientious opinion on the market or on particular securities?

In your discouragement, are you allowing your jealousy of others who are getting new business to lead you to oppose their efforts, or are you ready to do as they are doing?

Are you as broad-minded in regard to your competitors as you call the politicians to be?

Do you realize that if Wall Street people were willing to work physically, mentally and financially, they can take advantage of a big opportunity?

Do you realize that American corporations look hopefully for appeal to American investors for their capital requirements as never before?

THE REST IS EASY

NEW PROSPERITY ERA, SAYS GARY

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Great business concerns of the United States have hitherto been deficient in practical altruism, but they have now risen about and acknowledged a larger responsibility and duty toward the workingman, according to the view of Elbert H. Gary in a speech before the Members' Council of the Merchants' Association of New York city.

Mr. Gary charged that business men and demagogues were jointly to blame for a share in bringing about recent conditions in the industrial and commercial world. He declared that true prosperity demanded friendly cooperation between employers and employes. He said business activities were conducted on a less selfish basis than ever before. He predicted a period of prosperity for 1915, and said that big business would not afford to ignore or undervalue the force of public sentiment.

Coming from the chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation and applauded by 500 members of one of the greatest commercial organizations in the country, the address of Mr. Gary was considered as highly significant and hopeful.

"It struck the nail on the head," said William A. Marble, president of the Merchants' Association. "It was a helpful, hopeful speech, and I am glad so many members of our organization were permitted to hear it."

Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon and Hotel Lenox yesterday afternoon and night for the coming season were talked over and there is every reason to believe that the organization will retain its old-time strength and activity. It proposes to take an active part in legislative matters affecting mercantile as a whole and to hold a series of monthly smoke talks. A special committee was appointed to make arrangements for the annual club outing on June 17.

The Question of Our National Defence Is Not a Partisan One

Senator Lodge is rounding out his public career by a most notable service to his country. His latest speech in the Senate calling public attention to the helplessness of this country in the face of foreign aggression at a time when we are having a concrete and terrible proof of the uselessness of treaties and of the perfidy of the governments is a statesman's and a patriot's service to America.

The Senator's speech was absolutely non-partisan. He blamed all parties alike for the uncomfortable condition and he sought to make the remedial measures the policy of all our political parties.

Indeed it is a subject on which political divisions would be intolerable. The great wrong which President Wilson and the Democratic organization in Congress are now doing the country arises from their attempt to handle this grave situation in a partisan way.

The fact that Congressman Gardner, a Republican from Massachusetts, has learned the truth about our utter inefficiency for self-defence without ammunition, without big guns, without enough ships, without enough men to man the ships we already have, without torpedoes for our torpedo boats, without artillery, without horses, without wagons, with a militia one-third of whom have not yet qualified with the rifle, without adequate campaign clothing for many of those who have qualified, and the fact that Mr. Gardner has told the country this unpleasant truth and has taken the lead in the National House of Representatives to correct this pitiable situation, has led many small men in the leadership of the Democratic organization to place obstacles in the way of perfecting our national defence. But they are little men and the results of their obstruction will be in proportion to their size.

Former Governor Guild, former Secretary of the Navy Meyer and former President of the Boston Chamber of Commerce Coolidge have joined in a petition to the Massachusetts Legislature for an inquiry into the efficiency of our State organization. While the AMERICAN believes that our State militia is more efficient than the average State militia of the country, yet it is not casting a reflection upon either the men or the officers of the State troops to say that they are by no means qualified to face disciplined soldiers of the European armies. All three of these intelligent and experienced gentlemen know the folly of an idea, which has been too prevalent in this country, that our ill-disciplined volunteers could successfully face the trained soldiers of the foreign countries merely because their individual initiative and intelligence is greater. There is no more dangerous mistake than this notion. If our boys in school were told the truth about our military history and heard less of the flamboyant Fourth of July orations about our wonderful victories, this mistaken idea would never have found lodgment in the minds of the American people and we would not today be in a state of such dangerous helplessness.

Our undisciplined volunteers have never been a match for the trained soldiers who were brought against them. This was true in the Revolutionary War and it was doubly true in the war of 1812. Both the French and the German experts say without hesitation that if their forces had been called upon to put down the rebellion in 1860 it would not have taken them six months to do so, and no well informed man on military matters doubts it for a moment.

There are no better, sturdier, more intelligent men on this continent than those who make up the Canadian militia. They have the same stuff as comprise our own militia, yet it has been found necessary to give them several months of the hardest kind of training under professional officers before they were allowed to go to the front. Consider then how long it would take us to develop our citizens who have not had even militia training.

If an investigation will help to make the people of Massachusetts realize the real condition of our national defence, Messrs. Coolidge, Meyer and Guild will be rendering great public service.

HIS CLASS MOTTO

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"HITCH your wagon to a star!"
Was the motto of his class;
They intended traveling far,
Every lad and every lass.
Out into the busy world
When Commencement Day was over
Young Erasmus Wright was whirled
And began his search for clover.

Various countries near and far
Young Erasmus Wright was switched to;
Ever looking for a star
That his wagon might be hitched to;
Now he's older, getting gray,
And, obedient to his bosses,
Hooks his wagon every day
To a team of grocery hosses.

Earth's Gravitation Draws the Swiftest Bullet Down Just as Rapidly as It Does One That Is Merely Dropped---How to Calculate Height of Projectile

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"I FIND myself totally unable to prove the following proposition to a layman: A cannon at an elevation, H, from the ground, fires a projectile, A, in a horizontal direction. At the instant of discharge a shell, B, is dropped from the same elevation. I claim that the two shells reach the ground at the same time. Several of my friends disagree with me, and claim that B reaches the ground before A.—LEON D. KAUFMAN, New York city."

You are right. Supposing perfect horizontality of the ground, and neglecting any difference of effect from atmospheric resistance, the two shells would strike the earth at the same instant. Assume the height to be about sixteen feet (more accurately 16.09 feet); then both shells would reach the ground in one second after starting. If you stood beside the mouth of the cannon, and dropped one of the shells at the instant that the other was fired, they would both fall with the same velocity, and would both touch the ground simultaneously at the end of one second, although they might, at that instant, be half a mile apart, in a horizontal direction.

If the speed of the shell fired from the cannon were made so great that its course always remained tangent to the curvature of the earth, then it would never touch the ground, but, neglecting atmospheric resistance, would become a satellite of the earth, traveling around it in a circle. The speed necessary for this purpose would be about five miles per second.

The shell flying at that speed would still fall toward the earth's centre exactly as if it had been dropped from rest, but it could not reach the ground because the surface of the earth rounds off sixteen feet in about five miles, so that the shell would be just as high above it at the end of the first second of its flight as at the beginning. In two seconds the shell would drop 64 feet, but the earth would round off by the same amount, and so on.

The reason why both shells drop at the same speed toward the earth when one is simply allowed to fall while the other is fired horizontally out of a cannon is because the attraction of gravitation, by which bodies are forced toward the centre of the earth, acts both continuously and instantaneously. The moment the shell leaves the cannon, and is thus deprived of support from beneath, it begin to fall, exactly as it would do if it were not being driven forward horizontally by the explosive force of the powder. Its forward motion has not the slightest effect on the downward motion produced by the earth's gravity.

Nothing can shake off, destroy or eliminate the latter. If you should shoot the shell vertically upward gravitation would cut off, during the first second, 16 feet from the height that it would otherwise attain. 64 feet during the first two seconds, 144 feet during the first three seconds, and so on.

This enables us to calculate how high a shell, fired straight upward with any given velocity at starting, will ascend. So constant is the restraining force of gravitation upon a projectile that the mathematical formula to be applied in making such a calculation is precisely the same that would be used to determine the distance that a body must fall in order to generate the same velocity as that with which the shell starts upward. This means that the shell will continue to rise only for the length of time required by gravity to destroy its motion.

The formula may be put in this form: The velocity equals eight times the square root of the height. This is derived from the ordinary formula: $V=2\ G\ S$.

Assume that the velocity of the shell on leaving the cannon's mouth is 2,400 feet per second, directly upward. By the formula, 2,400 divided by 8, or 300, equals the square root of the height. The height itself, then, must equal the square of 300, which is 90,000, expressed in feet, equivalent to a little more than 17 miles. At that height the shell will cease to ascend and begin to fall back, acquiring, at the end of the fall, the same velocity, 2,400 feet per second, with which it started under the impulsion of the exploding powder. What gravitation has done, is first, to destroy the upward motion of the flying projectile, and, second, to impart to the arrested projectile the same speed of descent that it had of ascent.

It is important to note that all these calculations purposely neglect the effects of the resistance of the air. Air resistance would bring the projectile to rest sooner, and diminish the height of its ascent. The amount of this resistance depends upon a large number of variable circumstances, and has to be determined by experiment, but it has been so successfully studied that the science of gunnery, as the present war demonstrates, has attained a very high degree of accuracy.

Shall Husbands Support Wage-Earning Wives?

"Only a Very Greedy Woman," Says Dorothy Dix, "Wants to Hang On to Her Own Pocketbook and Yet Dip Her Hand Into Her Husband's"

By DOROTHY DIX

WE discussed the problem of the woman who has followed a gainful occupation before marriage continuing to follow it after marriage if she marries a poor man. This in turn brings up another question.

Shall the wage-earning wife support herself, or has she the right to expect her husband to provide for her as he would if she did not earn money herself?

This problem vexes many of my correspondents, and I get numerous letters from wives who are working outside of their homes, and yet who feel ill-used because their husbands do not support them.

It seems to me that it is only a very greedy and grasping woman who wants to hang on to her own pocketbook, and yet dip her hand into her husband's. A just and fair minded woman would see that she shouldn't expect to hold on to the old order of things, and yet reap all of the rewards of the new.

Woman Who Works Should Be Willing to Pay Her Own Expenses

The very basic idea involved in a man feeding and clothing and housing his wife is that she gives him in return her service in the house. She makes the home. She either superintends the servants, or does with her own hands the cooking, sweeping, cleaning, sewing, dusting necessary to making a comfortable place of abode.

A man has been considered to "support" his wife if he paid her bills, even though she did all the housework and worked ten times as hard as she would have had to do had she labored at any occupation outside of her home.

But if a woman elects to work for some other man in an office instead of her husband in the home, she certainly has no ethical claim upon him to buy her clothes nor pay her board bill. She has maintained her financial independence, and that gives her not only the right to support herself, but, morally considered, the necessity to do it. Whatever of her bills her husband pays is a matter of generosity with him. It is not her privilege.

This question, however, should never arise between husbands and wives, because, if marriage means anything at all, it is a partnership in which they have no separate interest and in which both work unselfishly for their mutual good.

The woman who continues to earn money after she is married to help buy a home, or to assist her husband in getting into business for himself, enjoys one of the greatest privileges that can come to any woman who really loves a man, and if she is of a nature so avaricious that she cannot feel it to be a pleasure to help her husband she should stay single and keep her little board to herself.

I am convinced, from much observation and study of the subject, that there is no other one thing that makes so many rifts in the domestic lute as the money question, and I am certain that nothing else would do as much to settle the divorce problem and insure matrimonial peace and harmony as for men and women not only to have a definite understanding in regard to the financial question before marriage, but to sign a legal contract settling the matter.

Men begrudge their wives money and refuse to give them any settled amount. Women are disgruntled because they don't get what they consider a fair divide. Hence there is unending bickering between the two. All of this could be avoided if there was a definite matrimonial partnership drawn up between a man and a woman before they pooled their lives as there is between two men who go into a business partnership and pool their finances and labor.

Couple Should Have Business Understanding Before Beginning Married Life

If a man signs a contract to give his wife a certain per cent. of his income every month on which to run the house and pay her own expenses he would know what he was going into and she would know what she had to expect, and if either party didn't like the terms they could withdraw on the safe side of the altar.

If a woman wanted to keep at her job after she was married she could settle it then with the man instead of fighting it out with him afterward. Also they could settle what part of the family expenses she was expected to pay, or if she was to have all of her money to go in the savings bank or buy millinery with it.

The financial problem is just as acute in the home as it is on Wall street, and some day we'll have enough sense to face it in a common sense way instead of leaving it all to chance, and there won't be so many tickets sold to Reno when we do.

THE PIPER

By CONSTANCE CLARKE

OUT of the echoing faraway,
Up from the rushing sea;
Back on the road of Yesterday,
A piper came to me.

"Pipe me a song of Life," I cried,
And he lifted his eyes above;
While the sweet wild notes drifted far and wide.
As he piped me a song of love.

Then laughing I hurried upon my way,
And I left love far behind;
Till I came on my piper of yesterday,
Grown old and crippled and blind.

"Pipe me a song of Life," I cried,
And with blind eyes lifted above,
He fingered his cracked old pipe with pride,
And played me the song of love.
